WAR SCARE SETS WALL STREET WILD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 1.—The stock market broke sensationally at the start of trading today.

Germany's decision to resume her relentless submarine warfare caused a tremendous shrinkag of values in almost every line of issues.

Some stocks opened 10 and 15 points down from last night's close and showed further large recessions on each sale.

U. S. Steel, the barometer of the war stocks, opened from 7 to 12 points down on first sales of 35,000 shares. Crucible was off 7 points at 54½, Lackawanna off 7 and Republic 12 points.

The copper groups were hit hard along with steel. Utah opened 14¼ points down at 97, Anaconda was off 8½ at 74, and Inspiration sluffed 9 points to 48. Kennicott was the steadiest of the coppers, losing only 3 points to 42.

Motors and industrials joined in the general tobogganing.

Central Leather, known as a skittish war stock, opened ten points off at 73, and soon slumped another 2 points. American Smelting was off ten, and General Motors opened at par, a slump of 10 points, for the first time in months.

Rail stocks were substantially lower, Union Pacific opening 5 points off at 137.

Bethlehem Steel dropped 26 points on the first sale, from 401 to 375.

WHEAT PRICES TUMBLE IN CHICAGO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—In a panicky rush to sell, wheat prices made one of the most sensational declines since the beginning of the war when the Chicago board of trade opened today.

Wheat for May delivery opened at $1.60, which was 11¼ cents under last night's closing price.

As the opening gong sounded, the wheat pit was converted into a whirlpool of excited humanity with traders rushing to sell on the news that Germany was about to open unrestricted submarine operations, threatening to cut off all export business in wheat. The shouts of the traders became so loud that the roar of voices was carried into the street outside.

Immediately after the crash May wheat rallied for a moment to $1.63, but quickly took another downward plunge to $1.57. Sales were being made so rapidly that it was impossible to keep track of them.

At the low point of the opening May showed a drop of 15¼ cents from yesterday's close.

Corn, oats and provisions also broke badly with wheat. May pork lost $2 from yesterday's close.

EMBARGO LIFTED FROM PORT OF N. Y.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 1.—The port of New York was opened to incoming and outgoing vessels today after remaining closed ever since the receipt of Germany's announcement that she would resume her ruthless submarine warfare.

Collector of the Port Dudley Field Malone, who is in supreme charge of all matters affecting harbor traffic, issued the order for the lifting of the embargo during the forenoon. He had remained up all night supervising preparations, and detailing his sleuths to watch the German interned liners here in anticipation of trouble.

With the embargo lifted, the Ward line steamer Morro Castle was permitted to sail for Havana with a passenger list of 186. It was said that there were no cancellations because of fear of submarines.

NEW AMBASSADOR FROM AUSTRIA HERE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 1.—The Holland-American liner Noordam, bearing Count Adam Tarnowski von Tarnow, the new Austrian ambassador to the United States, reached here today. The liner was held up at quarantine and none of the passengers allowed to land.

Count von Tarnow left Rotterdam on January 12. In an interview there before he left, the ambassador said:

"I anticipate no difficulties, as there are no complications of any sort between the United States and Austro-Hungary."

GERMANY'S NOTICE TO UNITED STATES

Ambassador von Bernstorff presented the following memorandum from the German government to Secretary of State Lansing late Wednesday afternoon:

Washington, Jan. 31, 1917.

Mr. Secretary of State.

Your Excellency was good enough to transmit to the Imperial Government a copy of the message which the president of the United States of America addressed to the senate on the 22d inst. The Imperial Government has given it the earnest consideration which the president's statements deserve, inspired, as they are, by a deep sentiment of responsibility.

It is highly gratifying to the Imperial Government to ascertain that the main tendencies of this important statement correspond largely to the desires and principles professed by Germany. These principles especially include self-government and equality of rights for all nations.

Germany would be sincerely glad if in recognition of this principle countries like Ireland and India, which do not enjoy the benefits of political independence, should now obtain their freedom.

The German people also repudiate all alliances which serve to force the countries into a competition for might and to involve them in a net of selfish intrigues.

On the other hand, Germany will gladly co-operate in all efforts to prevent future wars. The freedom of the seas, being a preliminary condition of the free existence of nations and the peaceful intercourse between them, as well as the open door for the commerce of all nations, has always formed part of the leading principles of Germany's political program.

All the more the Imperial Government regrets that the attitude of her enemies who are so entirely opposed to peace makes it impossible for the world at present to bring about the realization of these lofty ideals. Germany and her allies were ready to enter now into a discussion of peace and had set down as basis the guaranty of existence, honor and free development of their peoples.

Demands Safeguards in Belgium.

Their aims, as has been expressly stated in the note of December 12, 1916, were not directed toward the destruction or annihilation of their enemies and were, according to their conviction, perfectly compatible with the rights of the other nations.

As to Belgium, for which such warm and cordial sympathy is felt in the United States, the Chancellor had declared only a few weeks previously that its annexation had never formed part of Germany's intentions. The peace to be signed with Belgium was to provide for such conditions in that country, with which Germany desires to maintain friendly neighborly relations, that Belgium should not be used again by Germany's enemies for the purpose of instigating continuous hostile intrigues.

Such precautionary measures are all the more necessary, as Germany's enemies have repeatedly stated, not only in speeches delivered by their leading men, but also in the statutes of the economical conference in Paris, that it is their intention not to treat Germany as an equal, even after peace has been restored, but to continue their hostile attitude and especially to wage a systematical economic war against her.

The attempt of the four allied powers to bring about peace has failed, owing to the lust of conquest of their enemies, who desired to dictate the conditions of peace. Under the pretence of following the principles of nationality our enemies have disclosed their real aims in this way, viz: To dismember and dishonor Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria. To the wish of reconciliation they oppose the will of destruction. They desire a fight to the bitter end.

A new situation has thus been created, which forces Germany to new decisions. For two years and a half England has been using her naval power for a criminal attempt to force Germany into submission by starvation.

In brutal contempt of international law, the group of powers led by England does not only curtail the legitimate trade of their opponents but they also, by ruthless pressure, compel neutral countries either altogether to forego every trade not agreeable to the Entente powers or to limit it according to their arbitrary decrees.

Britain Starves Women and Children

The American government knows the steps which have been taken to cause England and her allies to return to the rules of international law and to respect the freedom of the seas. The English government, however, insists upon continuing its war of starvation, which does not at all affect the military power of its opponents, but compels women and children, the sick and the aged to suffer for their country pains and privations which endanger the vitality of the nation.

Thus British tyranny mercilessly increases the sufferings of the world; indifferent to the laws of humanity, indifferent to the protests of the neutrals whom they severely harm, indifferent even to the silent longing for peace among England's own allies. Each day of the terrible struggle causes new destruction, new sufferings. Each day shortening the war will, on both sides, preserve the life of thousands of brave soldiers and be a benefit to mankind.

The Imperial Government could not justify before its own conscience, before the German people and before history the neglect of any means destined to bring about the end of the war. Like the president of the United States, the Imperial Government had hoped to reach this goal by negotiations.

After attempts to come to an understanding with the Entente powers have been answered by the latter with the announcement of an intensified continuation of the war, the Imperial Government—to serve the welfare of mankind in a higher sense and not to wrong its own people—is now compelled to continue the fight for existence, again forced upon it, with the full employment of all the weapons which are at its disposal.

Sincerely trusting that the people and the government of the United States will understand the motives for this decision and its necessity, the Imperial Government hopes that the United States may view the new situation from the lofty heights of impartiality and assist on their part to prevent further misery and unavoidable sacrifice of human life.

Enclosing two memoranda regarding the details of the contemplated military measures at sea, I remain, etc.

(Signed.) J. BERNSTORFF.

Berlin (by wireless to Sayville), Jan. 31.—Following is the annex (memorandum) referred to in the German note:

From February 1, 1917, within barred zones around Great Britain, France, Italy and in the Eastern Mediterranean, as outlined in the following, all sea traffic forthwith will be opposed. Such barred zones are:

In the North Sea, the district around England and France which is limited by a line twenty nautical miles; the district along the Dutch coast as far as the Terschelling Lightship, the degree of longitude of the Terschelling Lightship to Udir; a line from there across the point 62 degrees north latitude, 5 longitude, westward along 62 degrees to a point three nautical miles south of the south point of Farover (Faroe Islands?); from there across the point 62 degrees north, —degrees west, to 61 degrees north, 15 degrees west; then 57 degrees north, 20 degrees west, to 47 degrees north, 20 degrees west; further, to 43 degrees north, 15 degrees west; then on degree latitude 43 degrees north to the point 20 nautical miles from Cape Finistere and 20 nautical miles distance along the Spanish north coast as far as the French frontier.

20 Mile Lane in Mediterranean.

Concerning the south, in the Mediterranean: For neutral shipping there remains open the sea district west of a line from Pt. de les Paquett to 38 degrees 20 minutes north and 6 degrees east, as well as north and west of a zone 60 sea miles broad along the North African coast, beginning on—degrees west longtitude.

To connect this sea district with Greece, the zone leads 20 sea miles in width north or east, following this line: 38 degrees north and 6 degrees east, 38degrees north and 11 degrees, 30 minutes east to 34 degrees north and 11 degrees 30 minutes east to 34 degrees north and 22 degrees 30 minutes east. From there it leads to a zone 20 sea miles broad west of 22 degrees 30 minutes east longitude into Greek territorial waters.

Neutral ships lying in ports of the barred zones do so at their own risk. Although precautions are being taken to spare neutral ships which on February 1 are on the way to ports in the barred zone, during an appropriate delay, yet it is urgently to be advised that they should be warned and directed to other routes by all means available.

Neutral ships lying in ports of the barred zones can with the same safety abandon the barred zones if they sail before February 5 and take the shortest route into the open district.

Conditions for American Ships.

Traffic of regular American passenger steamers can go on unmolested if:

A. Falmouth is taken as the port of destination, and if,

B. On the going and return the Scilly Islands, as well as the point 50 degrees north, 20 degrees west, be steered on. Along this route no German mines will be laid;

C. If steamers on this journey bear the following special signals which only they will be permitted to display in American ports:

A coating of paint on the ship's hull and the superstructure in vertical stripes three metres broad, alternating white and red;

On every mast a large flag of checkered white and red, on the stern the American national flag;

During darkness the national flag and the coat of paint to be as easily recognizable as possible from a distance; and the ships must be completely and brightly illuminated.

D. If only one steamer runs each week in each direction, arriving at Falmouth on Sundays, leaving Falmouth on Wednesdays.

E. If guarantees and assurances are given by the American Government that these steamers carry no contraband (according to the German list of contraband).

Two copies of maps on which the barred zones are outlind are added.

STORM OF RAGE SWEEPS ENGLAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Feb. 1.—A storm of rage, intense and nation-wide, swept Great Britain today when it became known that Germany had decided upon a policy of sink-on-sight submarine warfare.

Attacks, filled with bitterness and scorn, were hurled at Germany by the British press.

That Germany is in desperation and has decided to cast loose upon a campaign of utter recklessness in an effort to bring England to her knees, is the general view.

Confidence is felt that the German admiralty will fail in its attempt to starve the United Kingdom. England relies upon her navy and upon the effect of Germany's ruthless "U" boat campaign upon neutrals to pull her through.

The war has swung into a brand new phase—a phase which affects neutrals, principaliy the United States, as well as the Entente Powers.

Immediate action by the United States is expected now that Germany has abandoned the submarine pledge which she gave to President Wilson. The severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany is believed to be imminent.

Reinforcing Bridge.

Work is now underway on the reinforcing of the Poughkeepsie bridge across the Hudson river. Steel to the amount of 1,800 tons will be used and the cost will be $330,000. At present the bridge is double tracked. The reinforcing will consist in changing the floor system of the main bridge in such a manner that the load will be divided equally among the three trusses from a single track in the center. The bridge will then be operated as a single track on the main structure and double track on the approaches. The approaches will also be strengthened. The bridge was built in 1889 and 1890.

U. S. DESTROYERS IN ACTIVE SERVICE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Orders placing 22 destroyers in active service along the Atlantic coast "to preserve the neutrality of the United States," are being prepared by the navy department. These orders will be transmitted during the day. The destroyers are now distributed as follows:

Eleven at Charleston, S. C.; five at Philadelphia, and six at Boston.

The destroyers will be assigned to regular stations all along the coast from Main to Florida and will keep in touch with all shipping.

It also was announced that for the present at least no new orders would be sent to the Atlantic fleet but that it would be held at Guantanamo ready for any work that might come up.

GERMAN U-BOATS SCATTERED ON SEAS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 1.—German submarines are scattered far and wide on the seven seas. This was admitted in naval circles here today. Not alone are they in the prohibited zone as outlined in the German warning of yesterday, but at least two are reported to be in mid-Atlantic in the path of Europe-bound travel and others are believed to be lurking near the Azores. A report that a strange submarine has been reported near the West Indies is being investigated by the navy department.

Other reports that submarines and commerce raiders have reached the Pacific off South America are current but all information on the subject was refused at the navy department.

Amsterdam, Feb. 1.—Germany has sent to sea the mightiest fleet of submarines ever known to enforce the new blockade which she has proclaimed in the waters of the allied countries. Fishing boats putting into Dutch ports today said that they had sighted great numbers of submarines, proceeding westward through the North Sea on the surface.

Dispatches to the International News Service on Monday placed Germany's submarine fleet at between 700 and 800 units.

Address on Education.

The Rev. Father Lange, rector of Holy Cross Church, especially invites the people of Kingston to attend the service to be held at the church on Friday evening of this week, February 2, at 7:30 o'clock. At that time Father Lange will preach on "The Education of Children, the So-Called Old Fashioned and Modern Methods," and the invitation is made particularly cordial to all who are interested in children. This service will come on Candlemas eve, and the revival of the old time ceremonial with its procession of lights will be unusually full of interest to all.

Died of His Injuries.

Samuel J. McMeekin, aged 81 years, died in a Newburgh hospital Tuesday from injuries he received Friday when run down in the street by a horse and sleigh driven by John J. Mahaney.

2,000 AMERICANS ON BOARD STEAMERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 1.—Two thousand Americans, it is estimated, are on steamships bound to or from the danger zones prescribed by Germany's declaration of "sink-on-sight" submarine warfare.

Sailings last week for European ports were more frequent than they had been recently. On January 23 the Cunarder Pannonia left for London but she sailed under orders to put in at Halifax and carried no passengers so that it is possible that she may have been held at the Canadian port or recalled by wireless.

On January 24 the big Italian liner Dante Alighieri left for Naples with passengers. She is due to pass Gibraltar on Saturday.

The American liner Finland sailed for Liverpool a week ago today with passengers and is due there on Sunday. She was followed on Saturday by the American liner Philadelphia, which is due at Liverpool on Sunday.

The Philadelphia carries 126 passengers, including Captain Raold Amundsen, the famous explorer; Lieut. John M. Eager, of the U. S. army; Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and George Gordon Moore.

The Norwegian-America liner Bergensfjord also left on Saturday for Bergen, Norway, and should reach the Scotch coast on Sunday.

The biggest passenger liner on the ocean at present is the White Star ship Baltic which sailed for Liverpool on Monday with 25 first class passengers and 19 second cabin passengers. She is due to reach Liverpool next Wednesday. On the same day the Holland-America liner Ryndam, carrying a big passenger list, left for Falmouth and Rotterdam.

(Falmouth is the "excepted port" in the German notification, that is the port to which certain neutral ships will be allowed to voyage if they follow a prescribed route.)

Two other ships that sailed Monday were the Anchor liner California and the Cunard liner Saxonia. The former left for Glasgow and the latter for Liverpool.

The Cunarder Orduna and the Atlantic Transport liner Minnehaha are due at British ports today. The Orduna, for Liverpool, had a number of passengers on board.

The White Star liner Celtic, which sailed from here on January 21 with more than 15,000 tons of war material in her hold, was due at Liverpool late yesterday, but it is feared she may have been impeded by storms.

Vessels now in Mediterranean waters bound from New York to Genoa, include the three Italian liners San Girgio which sailed on January 18 with freight only; the Taormina, which sailed on January 20 with freight, and the America, which steamed simultaneously with the Taormina.

The Scandinavian-American liner Heilig Olav was scheduled to sail today for Copenhagen.

Other vessels in port, scheduled to sail later in the week are the American liner St. Louis for Liverpool, the French liner Rochambeau for Bordeaux and the Cunard liner Carmania for Liverpool.

CLOSE WATCH ON INTERNED LINERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 1.—Seventeen big German liners, interned here since the beginning of the war, were under the watchful scrutiny of police and government officials here today. The waterfront and shipping circles were rife with rumors that the instant Germany and the United States break the crews of the German vessels will blow them up at their docks.

Acting under orders of Port Collector Malone, a searching examination was made of every interned German vessel during the night. So far as could be learned nothing of a suspicious character was found but it was stated that under no circumstances will the vigilance be relaxed.

Rumors that the German crews would attempt to make a dash for sea with their vessels were discounted by officials. They pointed out that none of them have coal enough to make more than one day's run and their capture, even if they got out of the harbor, would be a simple matter.

Some of the biggest liners in the world are included in the German vessels here. They are the Vaterland, President Lincoln, President Grant, Nassovia, Bohemia, Pennsylvania, Pisa and Armenia, all of the Hamburg-American Line; the Kaiser Freidrich der Grosse, Kaiser Wilhelm II, Hamburg, Magdeburg, Adamsturm, Georg Washington, Princess Irene, Grosser Kurfurst and Barbarossa of the North German Lloyd Line. The Hamburg-American ships are on the Jersey side of the river, at Hoboken, and the German-Lloyds at 135th street, on the New York side.

WEBER GIVES HIS STORY OF QUARREL

Defendant in Murder Trial on Stand For Hour and a Half—Neighborhood Rows Preceded Fatal Fight With Charles Elmendorf Last August.

At 3:30 Wednesday afternoon Joseph Weber took the witness stand in his own behalf and for the following hour and a half he was examined by his attorney, Frank Brooks, and District Attorney Traver. During the time he was on the stand he was unable to remember many of the details which occurred on the day of the shooting and several times upon cross examination by Mr. Traver he was unable to recall what he had testified to on his direct examination.

Mrs. Weber was further examined at the afternoon session of court and testified that they had had trouble with the Elmendorf children on a number of occasions. George Elmendorf had struck her little girl and on other occasions the children had caused trouble.

When the Trouble Began.

The trouble between the two families began when the Elmendorf cow which was being pastured in the lot across from their home, dragged a dirty rope across clothes which Mrs. Weber had put on the grass to bleach and Mrs. Weber complained to the owners of the property who forbid Elmendorf from using the lot as a pasture. From this time and for a period of two years there was trouble between the two families.

George Killed Her Chickens.

At one time little George Elmendorf had killed one of Weber's chickens and when asked why he did it he told Mrs. Weber that his mother had told him to kill it. At that time the Elmendorfs were getting water at Weber's house and after a talk between the two women Mrs. Weber stopped the Elmendorfs from getting water from her house.

The trouble on August 8, the day before the shooting, Mrs. Weber said started when her little girl was sent out to get butter and when she came to the Elmendorf house she encountered the fish lines in the street. She stepped over the lines and on her way back home did so again. However, she was unable to get any butter on that trip and when she was sent out again in search of butter she complained of not wanting to go as the Elmendorf and Halstead children had lines across the street.

Mr. Weber Watched the Lines.

Her father told her to go on down the street and he would watch the children from around the corner. The Weber girl went on the errand and when she came back up the street her father went down to meet her and became tangled up in the lines. When he came home he had the fish lines which he showed to his wife. That night he left the house saying he would go the city hall and get a warrant for the arrest of the people who were causing the trouble. The Elmendorf and Halstead children, Mrs. Weber said, had thrown dirt upon her husband and he had warned them to cease but they continued to do so.

Mrs. Weber testified that her husband had come home the following day at 4:30 o'clock and told her that he had been unable to get a warrant. That day he met his wife and Mrs. Chambers on the corner of North Front street and Washington avenue and she asked him when he was coming home and he answered in a few minutes.

Mrs. Weber went home and nearly in front of the Elmendorf house she met Mrs. Hinkley who went home with her. Mr. Weber came home a few minutes later and then Mrs. Hinkly left for her home.

Weber Wanted a Dollar.

While Mrs. Weber was getting supper Mr. Weber asked her for a dollar and after she had given it to him she went on down cellar to get her meal ready. When she came back to the dining room Weber was gone. She went outside and saw Weber and Elmendorf in a wrangle over the gun.

Upon question she said she had not seen Elmendorf hitting her husband with the gun but when her testimony given before the grand jury was read, in which she stated that she saw Elmendorf hit her husband, she said Elmendorf hit Weber once on the head. She also saw her husband knock Charley Elmendorf down and then she ran up to Mrs. Chambers's porch from where she saw the Herrick woman throw a stone at Weber and he chase her and strike at her with the gun.

"Did you not testify that your husband got the gun to shoot cats with, when you appeared before the grand jury?" said the district attorney, "and now you say he got it to hunt frogs with."

Mrs. Weber also said she had been fined in recorder's court for throwing stones at the Elmendorf children. She had pleaded guilty and a fine had been paid by her lawyer.

On re-direct examination Mrs. Weber said she had called to Mrs. Fitzgerald to get the police when she saw the two men struggling over the gun in the roadway when she came out of her house. Since Mr. Weber had been confined in the county jail Mrs. Weber has been working out in order to earn a living for her family of three children. Mrs. Weber also said that the trees in the yard which had been referred to earlier in the trial were fruit trees and were still small.

Mrs. Emma Fitzgerald, who lives down Howland avenue some distance from the scene of the shooting, was

Their aims, as has been expresely stated in the note of December 12, 1916, were not directed toward the destruction or annihilation of their enemies and were, according to their conviction, perfectly compatible with the rights of the other nations.

As to Belgium, for which such warm and cordial sympathy is felt in the United States, the Chancellor had declared only a few weeks previously that its evacuation had never formed part of Germany's intentions. The peace to be signed with Belgium was to provide for such conditions in that country, with which Germany desires to maintain friendly neighborly relations, that Belgium should not be used again by Germany's enemies for the purpose of instigating continuous hostile intrigues.

Such precautionary measures are all the more necessary, as Germany's enemies have repeatedly stated, not only in speeches delivered by their leading men, but also in the statutes of the economical conference in Paris, that it is their intention not to treat Germany as an equal, even after peace has been restored, but to continue their hostile attitude and especially to wage a systematical economic war against her.

The attempt of the four allied powers to bring about peace has failed, owing to the lust of conquest of their enemies, who desired to dictate the conditions of peace. Under the pretence of following the principles of nationality our enemies have disclosed their real aims in this way, viz: To dismember and dishonor Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria. To the wish of reconciliation they oppose the will of destruction. They desire a fight to the bitter end.

A new situation has thus been created, which forces Germany to new decisions. For two years and a half England has been using her naval power for a criminal attempt to force Germany into submission by starvation.

In brutal contempt of international law, the group of powers led by England does not only curtail the legitimate trade of their opponents but they also, by ruthless pressure, compel neutral countries either altogether to forego every trade not agreeable to the Entente powers or to limit it according to their arbitrary decrees.

Britain Starves Women and Children

The American government knows the steps which have been taken to cause England and her allies to return to the rules of international law and to respect the freedom of the seas. The English government, however, insists upon continuing its war of starvation, which does not at all affect the military power of its opponents, but compels women and children, the sick and the aged to suffer for their country pains and privations which endanger the vitality of the nation.

Thus British tyranny mercilessly increases the sufferings of the world; indifferent to the laws of humanity, indifferent to the protests of the neutrals whom they severely harm, indifferent even to the silent longing for peace among England's own allies. Each day of the terrible struggle causes new destruction, new sufferings. Each day shortening the war will, on both sides, preserve the life of thousands of brave soldiers and be a benefit to mankind.

The Imperial Government could not justify before its own conscience, before the German people and before history the neglect of any means destined to bring about the end of the war. Like the president of the United States, the Imperial Government had hoped to reach this goal by negotiations.

After attempts to come to an understanding with the Entente powers have been answered by the latter with the announcement of an intensified continuation of the war, the Imperial Government—to serve the welfare of mankind in a higher sense and not to wrong its own people—is now compelled to continue the fight for existence, again forced upon it, with the full employment of all the weapons which are at its disposal.

Sincerely trusting that the people and the government of the United States will understand the motives for this decision and its necessity, the Imperial Government hopes that the United States may view the new situation from the lofty heights of impartiality and assist on their part to prevent further misery and unavoidable sacrifice of human life.

Enclosing two memoranda regarding the details of the contemplated military measures at sea, I remain, etc.

(Signed.) J. BERNSTORFF.

Berlin (by wireless to Sayville), Jan. 31.—Following is the annex (memorandum) referred to in the German note:

From February 1, 1917, within barred zones around Great Britain, France, Italy and in the Eastern Mediterranean, as outlined in the following, all sea traffic forthwith will be opposed. Such barred zones are:

In the North Sea, the district around England and France which is limited by a line twenty nautical miles; the district along the Dutch coast as far as the Terschelling Lightship, the degree of longitude of the Terschelling Lightship to Udir; a line from there across the point 62 degrees north latitude, 5 longitude, westward along 62 degrees to a point three nautical miles south of the south point of Farover (Faroe Islands?); from there across the point 62 degrees north, —degrees west, to 61 degrees north, 15 degres west; then 57 degrees north, 20 degrees west, to 47 degrees north, 20 degrees west; further, to 43 degrees north, 15 degrees west; then on degree latitude 43 degrees north to the point 20 nautical miles from Cape Finisterre and 20 nautical miles distance along the Spanish north coast as far as the French frontier.

20 Mile Lane in Mediterranean.

Concerning the south, in the Mediterranean: For neutral shipping there remains open the sea district west of a line from Pt. de les Paquett to 38 degrees 20 minutes north and 6 degrees east, as well as north and west of a zone 60 sea miles broad along the North African coast, beginning on—degrees west longitude.

To connect this sea district with Greece, the zone leads 20 sea miles in width north or east, following this line: 38 degrees north and 6 degrees east, 38degrees north and 11 degrees, 30 minutes east to 34 degrees north and 11 degrees 30 minutes east to 34 degrees north and 22 degrees 30 minutes east. From there it leads to a zone 20 sea miles broad west of 22 degrees 30 minutes east longitude into Greek territorial waters.

Neutral ships lying in ports of the barred zones do so at their own risk. Although precautions are being taken to spare neutral ships which on February 1 are on the way to ports in the barred zone, during an appropriate delay, yet it is urgently to be advised that they should be warned and directed to other routes by all means available.

Neutral ships lying in ports of the barred zones can with the same safety abandon the barred zones if they sail before February 5 and take the shortest route into the open district.

Conditions for American Ships.

Traffic of regular American passenger steamers can go on unmolested if:

A. Falmouth is taken as the port of destination, and if,

B. On the going and return the Scilly Islands, as well as the point 50 degrees north, 20 degrees west, be steered on. Along this route no German mines will be laid;

C. If steamers on this journey bear the following special signals which only they will be permitted to display in American ports:

A coating of paint on the ship's hull and the superstructure in vertical stripes three metres broad, alternating white and red;

On every mast a large flag of checkered white and red, on the stern the American national flag;

During darkness the national flag and the coat of paint to be as easily recognizable as possible from a distance; and the ships must be completely and brightly illuminated.

D. If only one steamer runs each week in each direction, arriving at Falmouth on Sundays, leaving Falmouth on Wednesdays.

E. If guarantees and assurances are given by the American Government that these steamers carry no contraband (according to the German list of contraband).

Two copies of maps on which the barred zones are outlind are added.

STORM OF RAGE SWEEPS ENGLAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Feb. 1.—A storm of rage, intense and nation-wide, swept Great Britain today when it became known that Germany had decided upon a policy of sink-on-sight submarine warfare.

Attacks, filled with bitterness and scorn, were hurled at Germany by the British press.

That Germany is in desperation and has decided to cast loose upon a campaign of utter recklessness in an effort to bring England to her knees, is the general view.

Confidence is felt that the German admiralty will fail in its attempt to starve the United Kingdom. England relies upon her navy and upon the effect of Germany's ruthless "U" boat campaign upon neutrals to pull her through.

The war has swung into a brand new phase—a phase which affects neutrals, principally the United States, as well as the Entente Powers.

Immediate action by the United States is expected now that Germany has abandoned the submarine pledge which she gave to President Wilson. The severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany is believed to be imminent.

Reinforcing Bridge.

Work is now underway on the reinforcing of the Poughkeepsie bridge across the Hudson river. Steel to the amount of 1,800 tons will be used and the cost will be $330,000. At present the bridge is double tracked. The reinforcing will consist in changing the floor system of the main bridge in such a manner that the load will be divided equally among the three trusses from a single track in the center. The bridge will then be operated as a single track on the main structure and double track on the approaches. The approaches will also be strengthened. The bridge was built in 1859 and 1890.

U. S. DESTROYERS IN ACTIVE SERVICE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Orders placing 22 destroyers in active service along the Atlantic coast "to preserve the neutrality of the United States," are being prepared by the navy department. These orders will be transmitted during the day. The destroyers are now distributed as follows:

Eleven at Charleston, S. C., five at Philadelphia, and six at Boston.

The destroyers will be assigned to regular stations all along the coast from Maine to Florida and will keep in touch with all shipping.

It also was announced that for the present at least no new orders would be sent to the Atlantic fleet but that it would be held at Guantanamo ready for any work that might come up.

GERMAN U-BOATS SCATTERED ON SEAS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 1.—German submarines are scattered far and wide on the seven seas. This was admitted in naval circles here today. Not alone are they in the prohibited zone as outlined in the German warning of yesterday, but at least two are reported to be in mid-Atlantic in the path of Europe-bound travel and others are believed to be lurking near the Azores. A report that a strange submarine has been reported near the West Indies is being investigated by the navy department.

Other reports that submarines and commerce raiders have reached the Pacific off South America are current but all information on the subject was refused at the navy department.

Amsterdam, Feb. 1.—Germany has sent to sea the mightiest fleet of submarines ever known to enforce the new blockade which she has proclaimed in the waters of the allied countries. Fishing boats putting into Dutch ports today said that they had sighted great numbers of submarines, proceeding westward through the North Sea on the surface.

Dispatches to the International News Service on Monday placed Germany's submarine fleet at between 700 and 800 units.

Address on Education.

The Rev. Father Lange, rector of Holy Cross Church, especially invites the people of Kingston to attend the service to be held at the church on Friday evening of this week, February 2, at 7:30 o'clock. At that time Father Lange will preach on "The Education of Children, the So-Called Old Fashioned and Modern Methods," and the invitation is made particularly cordial to all who are interested in children. This service will come on Candlemas eve, and the revival of the old time ceremonial with its procession of lights will be unusually full of interest to all.

2,000 AMERICANS ON BOARD STEAMERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 1.—Two thousand Americans, it is estimated, are on steamships bound to or from the danger zones prescribed by Germany's declaration of "sink-on-sight" submarine warfare.

Sailings last week for European ports were more frequent than they had been recently. On January 25 the Cunarder Pannonia left for London but she sailed under orders to put in at Halifax and carried no passengers so that it is possible that she may have been held at the Canadian port or recalled by wireless.

On January 24 the big Italian liner Dante Alighieri left for Naples with passengers. She is due to pass Gibraltar on Saturday.

The American liner Finland sailed for Liverpool a week ago today with passengers and is due there on Sunday. She was followed on Saturday by the American liner Philadelphia, which is due at Liverpool on Sunday.

The Philadelphia carries 136 passengers, including Captain Raold Amundsen, the famous explorer; Lieut. John M. Eager, of the U. S. army; Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and George Gordon Moore.

The Norwegian-America liner Bergensfjord also left on Saturday for Bergen, Norway, and should reach the Scotch coast on Sunday.

The biggest passenger liner on the ocean at present is the White Star ship Baltic which sailed for Liverpool on Monday with 25 first class passengers and 19 second cabin passengers. She is due to reach Liverpool next Wednesday. On the same day the Holland-America liner Ryndam, carrying a big passenger list, left for Falmouth and Rotterdam.

(Falmouth is the "excepted port" in the German notification, that is the port to which certain neutral ships will be allowed to voyage if they follow a prescribed route.)

Two other ships that sailed Monday were the Anchor liner California and the Cunard liner Saxonia. The former left for Glasgow and the latter for Liverpool.

The Cunarder Orduna and the Atlantic Transport liner Minnehaha are due at British ports today. The Orduna, for Liverpool, had a number of passengers on board.

The White Star liner Celtic, which sailed from here on January 27 with more than 15,000 tons of war material in her hold, was due at Liverpool late yesterday, but it is feared she may have been impeded by storms.

Vessels now in Mediterranean waters bound from New York to Genoa, include the three Italian liners San Girgio which sailed on January 18 with freight only; the Taormina, which sailed on January 20 with freight, and the America, which steamed simultaneously with the Taormina.

The Scandinavian-American liner Hellig Olav was scheduled to sail today for Copenhagen.

Other vessels in port, scheduled to sail later in the week are the American liner St. Louis for Liverpool, the French liner Rochambeau for Bordeaux and the Cunard liner Carmania for Liverpool.

CLOSE WATCH ON INTERNED LINERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 1.—Seventeen big German liners, interned here since the beginning of the war, were under the watchful scrutiny of police and government officials here today. The waterfront and shipping circles were rife with rumors that the instant Germany and the United States break the crews of the German vessels will blow them up at their docks.

Acting under orders of Port Collector Malone, a searching examination was made of every interned German vessel during the night. So far as could be learned nothing of a suspicious character was found but it was stated that under no circumstances will the vigilance be relaxed.

Rumors that the German crews would attempt to make a dash for sea with their vessels were discounted by officials. They pointed out that none of them have coal enough to make more than one day's run and their capture, even if they got out of the harbor, would be a simple matter.

Some of the biggest liners in the world are included in the German vessels here. They are the Vaterland, President Lincoln, President Grant, Nassovia, Bohemia, Pennsylvania, Pisa and Armenia, all of the Hamburg-American Line; the Kaiser Freidrich der Grosse, Kaiser Wilhelm II, Hamburg, Magdeburg, Adamsturm, Georg Washington, Princess Irene, Grosser Kurfurst and Barbarossa of the North German Lloyd Line. The Hamburg-American ships are on the Jersey side of the river, at Hoboken, and the German-Lloyds at 135th street, on the New York side.

WEBER GIVES HIS STORY OF QUARREL

Defendant in Murder Trial on Stand For Hour and a Half—Neighborhood Rows Preceded Fatal Fight With Charles Elmendorf Last August.

At 3:30 Wednesday afternoon Joseph Weber took the witness stand in his own behalf and for the following hour and a half he was examined by his attorney, Frank Brooks, and District Attorney Traver. During the time he was on the stand he was unable to remember many of the details which occurred on the day of the shooting and several times upon cross examination by Mr. Traver he was unable to recall what he had testified to on his direct examination.

Mrs. Weber was further examined at the afternoon session of court and testified that they had had trouble with the Elmendorf children on a number of occasions. George Elmendorf had struck her little girl and on other occasions the children had caused trouble.

When the Trouble Began.

The trouble between the two families began when the Elmendorf cow which was being pastured in the lot across from their home, dragged a dirty rope across clothes which Mrs. Weber had put on the grass to bleach and Mrs. Weber complained to the owners of the property who forbid Elmendorf from using the lot as a pasture. From this time and for a period of two years there was trouble between the two families.

George Killed Her Chickens.

At one time little George Elmendorf had killed one of Weber's chickens and when asked why he did it he told Mrs. Weber that his mother had told him to kill it. At that time the Elmendorfs were getting water at Weber's house and after a talk between the two women Mrs. Weber stopped the Elmendorfs from getting water from her house.

The trouble on August 8, the day before the shooting, Mrs. Weber said started when her little girl was sent out to get butter and when she came to the Elmendorf house she encountered the fish lines in the street. She stepped over the lines and on her way back home did so again. However, she was unable to get any butter on that trip and when she was sent out again in search of butter she complained of not wanting to go as the Elmendorf and Halstead children had lines across the street.

Mr. Weber Watched the Lines.

Her father told her to go on down the street and he would watch the children from around the corner. The Weber girl went on the errand and when she came back up the street her father went down to meet her and became tangled up in the lines. When he came home he had the fish lines which he showed to his wife. That night he left the house saying he would go the city hall and get a warrant for the arrest of the people who were causing the trouble. The Elmendorf and Halstead children, Mrs. Weber said, had thrown dirt upon her husband and he had warned them to cease but they continued to do so.

Mrs. Weber testified that her husband had come home the following day at 4:30 o'clock and told her that he had been unable to get a warrant. That day he met his wife and Mrs. Chambers on the corner of North Front street and Washington avenue and she asked him when he was coming home and he answered in a few minutes.

Mrs. Weber went home and nearly in front of the Elmendorf house she met Mrs. Hinkley who went home with her. Mr. Weber came home a few minutes later and then Mrs. Hinkly left for her home.

Weber Wanted a Dollar.

While Mrs. Weber was getting supper Mr. Weber asked her for a dollar and after she had given it to him she went on down cellar to get her meal ready. When she came back to the dining room Weber was gone. She went outside and saw Weber and Elmendorf in a wrangle over the gun.

Upon question she said she had not seen Elmendorf hitting her husband with the gun but when her testimony given before the grand jury was read, in which she stated that she saw Elmendorf hit her husband, she said Elmendorf hit Weber once on the head. She also saw her husband knock Charley Elmendorf down and then she ran up to Mrs. Chambers's porch from where she saw the Herrick woman throw a stone at Weber and he chase her and strike at her with the gun.

"Did you not testify that your husbad got the gun to shoot cats with, when you appeared before the grand jury?" said the district attorney, "and now you say he got it to hunt frogs with."

Mrs. Weber also said she had been fined in recorder's court for throwing stones at the Elmendorf children. She had pleaded guilty and a fine had been paid by her lawyer.

On re-direct examination Mrs. Weber said she had called to Mrs. Fitzgerald to get the police when she saw the two men struggling over the gun in the roadway when she came out of her house. Since Mr. Weber had been confined in the county jail Mrs. Weber has been working out in order to earn a living for her family of three children. Mrs. Weber also said that the trees in the yard which had been referred to earlier in the trial were fruit trees and were still small.

Mrs. Emma Fitzgerald, who lives down Howland avenue some distance from the scene of the shooting, was

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Feb. 1.—On Friday evening the Christian Endeavorers of the Presbyterian Church here held a social in their church and all had a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Winthrop Williams of Vineyard avenue had as week end guest their daughter, Mrs. Haviland, from Marlborough.

Dentist B. A. Reynolds has returned from up state where he has been visiting his mother, who is ill.

Miss Gertrude Dimsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dimsey of North Road, gave a party to several of her friends Monday evening in honor of her cousin, B. Dimsey, of Long Island, who has been visiting at her home. Every one present said that a delightful time would in no way express it. They enjoyed all games, and fine refreshments was the thing that just touched the spot.

It is reported that Zeno Lodge, K. of P., expects to celebrate its 53rd anniversary some time in February. The members and their families always look forward to the event with much pleasure as the committee in charge always have a good program and fine social time; and a big eat, which all seem to enjoy.

Mr. Schuble, the grape juice king, has shipped several car loads of the famous drink to St. Louis and many other renowned places. It is evident the people there know a good drink when they taste it. It certainly has a world-wide reputation and we can vouch for its goodness.

Do not forget to take your handsome feathered birds to the poultry show in this place February 8. We hear some are looking for blue ribbons. Get your fowls in good shape for there will be some wonderful poultry critics present.

Miss Belle Brinckerhoff was a shopper in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday.

Mrs. Chester Atkins and daughter, Ethel, were Poughkeepsie shoppers Tuesday.

O. E. S. of this place will hold their regular meeting next Monday evening, February 5. Members are requested to be present at that time.

D. of A. will hold their regular meeting on next Wednesday evening, February 7. At this time, we were informed, the installation of the officers will take place. Their district deputy from Poughkeepsie will be the installing officer. A committee will furnish refreshments and a pleasant and profitable evening is expected.

Miss Maggie Eckert has recovered from the grip, so she is able to go out of doors. The grip is one that holds fast for a while, sorry to say.

Look out for February 14. The Auxiliary Club are going to hold a social for the members of the club and their families, they inform us They are going to have a literary and musical program and some good things to eat. Few days will slip by but the absorbing topic will be, we are going out the 14th to the club social, for they all know they will have a good time. This club is a popular affair and its membership has almost outgrown parlor quarters, making it necessary to convene in the church, still there are few members whose homes are large enough to admit the monthly membership meetings, and through the few winter months hold meetings at these homes, thinking it casts a more home-like feature over all, and the members are loyal and devoted to every interest of the club, so remember that the members and their families are expected to be at the church parlor on the evening of February 14.

S. A. Ferris and Theron DuBois were in Lloyd last Sunday and took charge of the Sunday school and preaching service in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Douglas of New Paltz, who is quite ill at his home there with an attack of grip.

Porter Lacey was a week end visitor here with his mother and grandmother on Grand street.

Miss Ethel Decker of Ossining spent a few days past week in this place with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Decker.

Mrs. S. A. Ferris entertained her Sunday school class recently and all spent a pleasant evening and at the close of the sport, refreshments were served.

A. Freighley of New Paltz and the Misses Rose and Bessie Keller of Kingston were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mr. Edward Miller of Maple avenue.

Mrs. Uriah Decker entertained her sister, Mrs. G. Drake of West Park last Sunday.

Miss Denney of West Park was in town last Wednesday week visiting her aunt, Mrs. Le Baron, who on that day celebrated her 100th anniversary. Few people anywhere around can boast of living that length of time. This one hundred year young woman baked a birthday cake and had a few neighbors in to enjoy the evening meal with her and it certainly was a treat for these friends to have the honor and privilege also pleasure of dining with such a hostess.

Sunshine Lodge, I. O. O. F., held their regular meeting on Thursday evening week and installed their newly elected officers and at the close of work, refreshments were served and all had a very fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lent of Milton avenue had guests last week from Poughkeepsie and Wappingers Falls.

Mrs. Sundstrom and her daughter of Poughkeepsie were in town Wednesday calling on some of their friends.

There are several of the residents of this place down with the grip and it keeps the doctors busy.

Mrs. E. Van Wagner of New Paltz was in town last week calling on friends.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Grim of West Park were guests of friends in this place last Sunday.

Miss Jennie Wilklow entertained guests from New Paltz last week.

Mrs. M. Stow had visiting her last week her mother and sister from out of town.

Irving Dayton visited his sister in Milton last week.

Some of the suffrage women are now thinking and talking about some affairs of note to take place soon.

Mrs. Laura T. Vail of "Lakeledge" was hostess to relatives from Poughkeepsie recently.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Townsend had as her guest last Sunday, Mrs. Mackey of West Park.

Miss Bertha Dimsey was in Lloyd the first of the week.

Mrs. Julia Worden, Mrs. Thatcher, Mrs. Henry Elting, from Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Colyer and E. A. Marsh were in Poughkeepsie one day last week. At present there seems to be quite an attraction in the city, for there are some good plays, and beside the plays they can take in the beauties of the auto show and see the handsome cars. One enjoys those things even though all are not able to own them, for everyone cannot be a millionaire.

Lulu Constable, whose engagement was recently announced, was the recipient of articles for the kitchen by some of the members of the M. E. Church choir one evening last week. We were informed they had a very pleasant time.

Regents was the popular thing last week at high school here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Feeter were in Poughkeepsie last Wednesday, and while there attended the automobile show.

Mrs. Baldwin of Maple avenue spent several days last week in New York city.

Egbert Van Nostrand of New York city was in town last week, called here on account of the severe illness of his father, Frederick Van Nostrand.

Last week while attending the auto show in Poughkeepsie we ran across Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wilcox, Hubert Elting, R. H. Decker, Mrs. J. B. Moule, Mrs. Mary Markle and A. P. Wilklow, who were all simply delighted with the fine display of cars. Although the attendance was not as large as we expected to see, still those there appreciated the treat greatly.

Last Thursday evening the friends of Clarence Smedes tendered him a surprise party at his home on Vineyard avenue. There were a good many present and all enjoyed music and games, and last but not least was a good supper and every one did ample justice to it and decided they would like to surprise Clarence again for he made a first class host.

Mrs. J. R. Melins has returned to her home here after spending a few days very pleasantly with friends out of town.

Whitfield Dickenson of Newark, N. J., has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey Staples. He is a brother of Mrs. Staples, and resided in Highland for several years. His many friends were delighted to see his familiar face once more.

George Gedney of Mt. Vernon, Mrs. Sarah Gedney, William Gedney and Miss May Merkle of Bayonne, N. J., and Uriah Gedney of New Brunswick, N. J., were guests for dinner last Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Thompson, on Milton avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram Bloomer of Lewision Lake House, Vineyard avenue, with guests from New York and Brooklyn, have enjoyed some jolly sleighrides, also went to Milton Friday evening last and indulged in some of the new dancing figures. All had a very pleasant evening.

We are informed Harold Upright has purchased a new automobile of the Buick make. We suppose he will not allow any one to pass him now and in the summer can say to some, "Excuse my dust, please."

Last Saturday the remains of Mrs. Uriah Gedney of New Brunswick, N. J., were brought to Poughkeepsie and the funeral services were held from Mr. Eighmie's undertaking rooms there in the afternoon. There were many relatives and friends in attendance and the floral emblems sent were many and very handsome, showing by these the high esteem in which she was held. She was a member of D. of A. and other organizations. She was well known in this place, also Poughkeepsie, for only recently they left there for New Jersey and had been in their new home only a few months. She will be greatly missed by all her people for she was of a cheerful disposition and made many friends. She is survived by her husband and two daughters and one son. The many friends in this place extend their sympathies to the dear ones left to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother. The interment was in Highland cemetery.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A kindly deed, is a little seed,
That groweth all unseen;
And lo, when none do look thereon
Anew it springeth green.

SWISS AND ITALIAN DISHES.

The Swiss people are most frugal, nearly everything costs more, sometimes twice and three times as much as they do in England. As everything is imported they find it necessary to be especially economical. Nothing is wasted; the bones from joints, stews and steaks are carefully saved for soups.

Veal Roast With Stuffing.—Put the following stuffing in a pocket, cut in breast of veal with one onion and a few slices of bacon: Take a quarter of a pound of rice, carefully washed, a little parsley and a small quantity of meat, salt, pepper, nutmeg and butter, and a little scraped onion. After stuffing the veal, pour some very hot bacon fat over it to sear the meat and hold in the juices; dredge with flour and roast until well done.

Flour Soup (Mehlsuppe).—Take four tablespoonfuls of drippings, a half cupful of flour; cook together until smooth, then add one and a half quarts of stock, one egg, mixed with a little milk; salt, pepper and grated nutmeg to taste.

Italian Sausage With Spinach.—Pigs feet are used for cases instead of the usual skins and the sausage highly seasoned, with no bread crumbs. The spinach is boiled until tender, then squeezed dry, then cut in slices, then fried in bacon fat for 20 minutes. Then add a bit of garlic and butter befor it is ready to serve.

The great national dish of Italy called polenta, is made as we do cornmeal mush.

Quenelles.—These are small pieces of pastry filled with a small mound of minced meat and the pastry fluted around the edges, then they are cooked in the soup as dumplings are and served with the soup. The poor people make these quenelles larger and serve them as a main dish with tomato sauce. For the paste eggs and butter are used.

Fonduta.—Slice cold polenta cornmeal mush in thin slices and arrange in a dish with layers of grated cheese, pour milk over; add a little butter, and bake until the milk is absorbed.

Foods to be cooked in a small amount of fat are so much more tasty if olive oil is used than butter, and very little difference as to expense.

TRUTH.

Cherish the truth. Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it out. It is always upon our lips and is ready to drop out before we are aware. A lie is troublesome and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one trick needs a great many more to make it good.

LIFE'S OBJECT.

The object of true upbringing lies not in merely inducing men to do good things, but to find joy in doing them; not only to maintain purity, but to love purity; not to practice justice only, but to long and yearn for justice, to work for it, to battle for it if need be.—John Ruskin.

An Avis Lecture-Recital.

On Tuesday evening, February 20th, Edward Avis will give an illustrated lecture-recital, "Birdland," in the high school auditorium under the auspices of the Burroughs Junior Audubon Society. Mr. Avis has given his lecture with great success and has always delighted his audiences. A short time ago he was employed for three weeks by the Massachusetts Humane Society to give his recital and was heard in twenty different schools by between 20,000 and 25,000 boys and girls. The Boston teachers are warm in their praise of Mr. Avis and his work.

Candlemas Service in Holy Cross.

Friday, February 2nd, is the Feast of the Purification, also called Candlemas. At Holy Cross Church the day will be observed, like in other years, with very elaborate ceremonies. At the evening service at 7:30 there will be blessing of the candles and the beautiful "Procession of Lights" in which the whole congregation takes part. Father Lange will preach a sermon on some of the differences between the "old fashioned" methods of educating children in home, school and church, and the "modern" methods. Everybody interested in children are cordially invited to be present.

Feathered Visitor in Town.

Kingston city is having an unusually varied group of feathered visitors this winter. In addition to the English sparrows, whom we have always with us and the English starlings, also an occasional crow and grackle, several of the sociable and cheery little red breasted nuthatches have been seen in the vicinity of Green, Crown and John streets. A little larger than the wren, they present a pretty winter picture with their rosy breasts, their slate blue backs and the tail feathers barred with white near the end which is tipped with pale brown. Their call, scarcely a song, is as cheery as their appearance.

Menu for Holy Cross Supper.

The following delicious viands will be served at the supper to be given at Holy Cross parish house on Tuesday evening of next week, from 5 to 8 o'clock: Chicken pie, a la Maryland, mashed potatoes, peas, cranberry sauce, celery, pickles, cold slaw, bread and butter, apple and mince pie, ice cream and cake, tea and coffee. The supper will be followed by a dance, for which good music has been secured, and the price of supper tickets will include the dance.

The Annual Quilting.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Fair Street Reformed Church will hold their annual quilting in the Sunday school room on Friday, at 10 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at noon to the workers and their friends and a thank offering received. Contributions to the Kentucky Mountain Mission Box will be received at that time. Business session at 4 o'clock.

(U. S. Senator Cummins).

Washington, Feb. 1.—A strenuous battle to prevent a debate upon the president's peace message is expected when the resolution of Senator Cummins calling for an open discussion is called up in the senate. The resolution is upon the calendar and cannot be taken up except by vote. Almost any motion, however, will suffice for Senator Cummins to base a speech upon, so that a debate is practically certain. Senator Borah, who has a resolution pending to reaffirm the Monroe Doctrine, and which is looked upon as a slap at President Wilson's peace message, has said that he will not allow his resolution to interfere with that of Senator Cummins, and that he will stand out of the way.

What Good Is the Weather Bureau?

This question is likely to be asked in more or less querulous tones whenever the local weather prediction fails, as it often does. The inquirer overlooks the fact that the weather bureau has much more important things to foretell than ordinary changes of weather. It predicts with certainty great windstorms, destructive floods, severe freezes and other atmospheric visitations that endanger life and property on a large scale and collects climatic statistics for scientific agriculture.—Popular Science Monthly.

Brings Success.

Courage and faith beget energy and power; energy and power rightly directed bring success. Such, as a rule, are the successful people—successful simply by way of natural law.

Friendship.

A really noble friendship, which realizes the higher ideals of the revelation, must be open-eyed; friendship ought never to lose its sight.—Hamilton W. Mable.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Feb. 1.—On Friday evening the Christian Endeavorers of the Presbyterian Church here held a social in their church and all had a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Winthrop Williams of Vineyard avenue had as week end guest their daughter, Mrs. Haviland, from Marlborough.

Dentist B. A. Reynolds has returned from up state where he has been visiting his mother, who is ill.

Miss Gertrude Dimsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dimsey of North Road, gave a party to several of her friends Monday evening in honor of her cousin, B. Dimsey, of Long Island, who has been visiting at her home. Every one present said that a delightful time would in no way express it. They enjoyed all games, and fine refreshments was the thing that just touched the spot.

It is reported that Zeno Lodge, K. of P., expects to celebrate its 53rd anniversary some time in February. The members and their families always look forward to the event with much pleasure as the committee in charge always have a good program and fine social time; and a big eat, which all seem to enjoy.

Mr. Schuble, the grape juice king, has shipped several car loads of the famous drink to St. Louis and many other renowned places. It is evident the people there know a good drink when they taste it. It certainly has a world-wide reputation and we can vouch for its goodness.

Do not forget to take your handsome feathered birds to the poultry show in this place February 8. We hear some are looking for blue ribbons. Get your fowls in good shape for there will be some wonderful poultry critics present.

Miss Belle Brinckerhoff was shopper in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday.

Mrs. Chester Atkins and daughter, Ethel, were Poughkeepsie shoppers Tuesday.

O. E. S. of this place will hold their regular meeting next Monday evening, February 5. Members are requested to be present at that time.

D. of A. will hold their regular meeting on next Wednesday evening, February 7. At this time, we were informed, the installation of the officers will take place. Their district deputy from Poughkeepsie will be the installing officer. A committee will furnish refreshments and a pleasant and profitable evening is expected.

Miss Maggie Eckert has recovered from the grip, so she is able to go out of doors. The grip is one that holds fast for a while, sorry to say.

Look out for February 14. The Auxiliary Club are going to hold a social for the members of the club and their families, they inform us. They are going to have a literary and musical program and some good things to eat. Few days will slip by but the absorbing topic will be, we are going out the 14th to the club social, for they all know they will have a good time. This club is a popular affair and its membership has almost outgrown parlor quarters, making it necessary to convene in the church, still there are few members whose homes are large enough to admit the monthly membership meetings, and through the few winter months hold meetings at these homes, thinking it casts a more home-like feature over all, and the members are loyal and devoted to every interest of the club, so remember that the members and their families are expected to be at the church parlor on the evening of February 14.

S. A. Ferris and Theron DuBois were in Lloyd last Sunday and took charge of the Sunday school and preaching service in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Douglas of New Paltz, who is quite ill at his home there with an attack of grip.

Porter Lacey was a week end visitor here with his mother and grandmother on Grand street.

Miss Ethel Decker of Ossining spent a few days past week in this place with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Decker.

Mrs. S. A. Ferris entertained her Sunday school class recently and all spent a pleasant evening and at the close of the sport, refreshments were served.

A. Freighley of New Paltz and the Misses Rose and Bessie Keller of Kingston were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mr. Edward Miller of Maple avenue.

Mrs. Uriah Decker entertained her sister, Mrs. G. Drake of West Park last Sunday.

Miss Denney of West Park was in town last Wednesday week visiting her aunt, Mrs. Le Baron, who on that day celebrated her 100th anniversary. Few people anywhere around can boast of living that length of time. This one hundred year young woman baked a birthday cake and had a few neighbors in to enjoy the evening meal with her and it certainly was a treat for these friends to have the honor and privilege also pleasure of dining with such a hostess.

Sunshine Lodge, I. O. O. F., held their regular meeting on Thursday evening week and installed their newly elected officers and at the close of work, refreshments were served and all had a very fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lent of Milton avenue had guests last week from Poughkeepsie and Wappingers Falls.

Mrs. Sundstrom and her daughter of Poughkeepsie were in town Wednesday calling on some of their friends.

There are several of the residents of this place down with the grip and it keeps the doctors busy.

Mrs. E. Van Wagner of New Paltz was in town last week calling on friends.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Grim of West Park were guests of friends in this place last Sunday.

Miss Jennie Wilklow entertained guests from New Paltz last week.

Mrs. M. Slow had visiting her last week her mother and sister from out of town.

Irving Dayton visited his sister in Milton last week.

Some of the suffrage women are now thinking and talking about some affairs of note to take place soon.

Mrs. Laura T. Vail of "Lakeledge" was hostess to relatives from Poughkeepsie recently.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Townsend had as her guest last Sunday, Mrs. Mackey of West Park.

Miss Bertha Dimsey was in Lloyd the first of the week.

Mrs. Julia Worden, Mrs. Thatcher, Mrs. Henry Elting, from Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Colyer and E. A. Marsh were in Poughkeepsie one day last week. At present there seems to be quite an attraction in the city, for there are some good plays, and beside the plays they can take in the beauties of the auto show and see the handsome cars. One enjoys those things even though all are not able to own them, for everyone cannot be a millionaire.

Lulu Constable, whose engagement was recently announced, was the recipient of aprons for the kitchen by some of the members of the M. E. Church choir one evening last week. We were informed they had a very pleasant time.

Regents was the popular thing last week at high school here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Feeter were in Poughkeepsie last Wednesday, and while there attended the automobile show.

Mrs. Baldwin of Maple avenue spent several days last week in New York city.

Egbert Van Nostrand of New York city was in town last week, called here on account of the severe illness of his father, Frederick Van Nostrand.

Last week while attending the auto show in Poughkeepsie we ran across Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wilcox, Hubert Elting, R. H. Decker, Mrs. J. B. Moule, Mrs. Mary Markle and A. P. Wilklow, who were all simply delighted with the fine display of cars. Although the attendance was not as large as we expected to see, still those there appreciated the treat greatly.

Last Thursday evening the friends of Clarence Smedes tendered him a surprise party at his home on Vineyard avenue. There were a good many present and all enjoyed music and games, and last but not least was a good supper and every one did ample justice to it and decided they would like to surprise Clarence again for he made a first class host.

Mrs. J. R. Melins has returned to her home here after spending a few days very pleasantly with friends out of town.

Whitfield Dickenson of Newark, N. J., has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey Staples. He is a brother of Mrs. Staples, and resided in Highland for several years. His many friends were delighted to see his familiar face once more.

George Gedney of Mt. Vernon, Mrs. Sarah Gedney, William Gedney and Miss May Merkle of Bayonne, N. J., and Uriah Gedney of New Brunswick, N. J., were guests for dinner last Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Thompson, on Milton avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram Bloomer of Lewiston Lake House, Vineyard avenue, with guests from New York and Brooklyn, have enjoyed some jolly sleighrides, also went to Milton Friday evening last and indulged in some of the new dancing figures. All had a very pleasant evening.

We are informed Harold Upright has purchased a new automobile of the Buick make. We suppose he will not allow any one to pass him now and in the summer can say to some, "Excuse my dust, please."

Last Saturday the remains of Mrs. Uriah Gedney of New Brunswick, N. J., were brought to Poughkeepsie and the funeral services were held from Mr. Eighmie's undertaking rooms there in the afternoon. There were many relatives and friends in attendance and the floral emblems sent were many and very handsome, showing by these the high esteem in which she was held. She was a member of D. of A. and other organizations. She was well known in this place, also Poughkeepsie, for only recently they left there for New Jersey and had been in their new home only a few months. She will be greatly missed by all her people for she was of a cheerful disposition and made many friends. She is survived by her husband and two daughters and one son. The many friends in this place extend their sympathies to the dear ones left to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother. The interment was in Highland cemetery.

Somewhat Particular.

A little girl entered the grocery store and asked for a quart of vinegar. The clerk asked: "Brown or white?" and she replied: "What other colors have you got?"

The KITCHEN CABINET

A kindly deed, is a little seed,
That groweth all unseen;
And lo, when none do look thereon

SWISS AND ITALIAN DISHES.

The Swiss people are most frugal, nearly everything costs more, sometimes twice and three times as much as they do in England. As everything is imported they find it necessary to be especially economical. Nothing is wasted; the bones from joints, stews and steaks are carefully saved for soups.

Veal Roast With Stuffing.—Put the following stuffing in a pocket, cut in breast of veal with one onion and a few slices of bacon: Take a quarter of a pound of rice, carefully washed, a little parsley and a small quantity of meat, salt, pepper, nutmeg and butter, and a little scraped onion. After stuffing the veal, pour some very hot bacon fat over it to sear the meat and hold in the juices; dredge with flour and roast until well done.

Flour Soup (Mehlsuppe).—Take four tablespoonfuls of drippings, a half cupful of flour; cook together until smooth, then add one and a half quarts of stock, one egg, mixed with a little milk; salt, pepper and grated nutmeg to taste.

Italian Sausage With Spinach.—Pigs feet are used for cases instead of the usual skins and the sausage highly seasoned, with no bread crumbs. The spinach is boiled until tender, then squeezed dry, then cut in slices, then fried in bacon fat for 20 minutes. Then add a bit of garlic and butter before it is ready to serve.

The great national dish of Italy called polenta, is made as we do cornmeal mush.

Quenelles.—These are small pieces of pastry filled with a small mound of minced meat and the pastry fluted around the edges, then they are cooked in the soup as dumplings are and served with the soup. The poor people make these quenelles larger and serve them as a main dish with tomato sauce. For the paste eggs and butter are used.

Fonduta.—Slice cold polenta cornmeal mush in thin slices and arrange in a dish with layers of grated cheese, pour milk over; add a little butter, and bake until the milk is absorbed.

Foods to be cooked in a small amount of fat are so much more tasty if olive oil is used than butter, and very little difference as to expense.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 1, 1917.

It is difficult to comment in temperate language upon Germany's announcement that she is about to violate her solemn pledges to the United States to abstain from murder of non-combatants on the high seas. When she originally issued her forbidden zone proclamation two years ago she proposed to allow four American ships a week to ply between this country and England, but now reduces this number to one, at the same time adding additional regulations to such traffic. Never before was such effrontery offered to a great nation. Evidently, the Kaiser considers that we are in the same class with China. Even the supine Wilson can hardly pass over this crowning insult with one of his celebrated notes. In April of last year he declared officially that a renewal of illegal submarine activities would be followed by a severance of diplomatic relations with Germany. There is now no other honorable course for him to pursue. If it plunges us into war, as seems probable, that cannot be helped. There are some things worse than war.

The most prodigious business proposition ever conceived by human mind has been formulated by the new Empire Resources Committee of the British Government. It contemplates wiping out the entire war debt by a tremendous real estate speculation managed in such a way as to make failure impossible. The idea is to buy 2,000,000 acres of land in the western provinces of the Dominion of Canada from the Canadian Government, on condition that the entire purchase price be promptly expended in improving the property, so that it can soon be sold to settlers at a price which will produce a net profit of at least $20,000,000,000. Under this plan, which is doubtless feasible, Canada would as a Government lose a considerable section of territory which has at present but small value, and would be out a relatively small amount of interest money, but as an offset to this would receive for ever after large revenues from taxes on the settlers on the improved lands. Great Britain would get rid of her war debt and be able to look forward to a future more prosperous than her past. The purchasers of the improved lands would get homes in a desirable country at bargain prices. It is a good transaction which profits everybody concerned. We have heard of nothing so wonderful since the day of the man who tried to lift himself by his boot straps. By the way, how much has the United States made by irrigating its deserts?

TAXATION.

Many of the franchise valuations fixed by the New York State Board of Tax Commissioners for 1917 show increases and only a few show decreases. The trend of such valuations has been upward ever since they became taxable, but usually the courts sustain the upward movement, which is a good indication that the franchises themselves have become more valuable. Corporations as a rule are bearing their just share of taxation in more equitable proportion than individuals, and in some cases are overtaxed in order that political aspirants or legislatures may point with pride to their records in avoiding a direct tax—a fact which is supposed to make everyone connected with such a condition solid with his constituents. The result of over-imposition of indirect taxes is to raise the cost of living, because if it is possible to pass along increased costs or expenses to the ultimate consumer, such cost is passed. Taxation has become more complex, just as our system of government has assumed a more intricate and complicated aspect.

As all communities increase, whether they are small villages or great commonwealths, the cost of government increases. Education is one of the items of this increased cost, whether it is given in schools or through officials whose duties or value are not yet of exact determination. Education does make people more self-reliant and less in need of the bludgeon that was necessary in controlling primitive people as they increased, but at the same time it furnishes people with a keener perception of their wants and how to satisfy them, all of which means increased taxation, which must come from the people themselves.

Human nature being what it is and what it has been since the creation of the world, mankind is first looking to satisfy his wants at the expense of somebody else, and this is demonstrated in one way by taxation of public franchises, which for years were regarded as not being subject to tax. Such taxation is only one step in the direction of scientific and accurate distribution of tax. Until the system becomes more perfect, relief might be obtained by curtailing expenses, but when that proposal is put into effect the really useful institutions of modern government suffer while useless appendages continue undisturbed because of the innate human desire not to disturb a good fellow who either holds a public job or who associates for business reasons with those who do.

He'd Take That Job.

Maurice E. McLoughlin, the lawn tennis champion, was talking about a player who had failed to make good. "The man won't train," he said. "He won't work. He won't deny himself. His disposition is a good deal like the tramp's: 'What a job digging potatoes?' a farmer asked a tramp. 'Yes,' the tramp answered, 'if ye mean diggin' 'em out o' the gravy.'"

A Trifle Hasty.

Speaking of absent-mindedness, there was a man who lived on Flatbush avenue and forgot most things except the date of his birth. After departing for work he returned each day to tell his wife that he had forgotten something. One morning, ten minutes after his departure, there came a rap at the door. The exasperated wife threw wide the window and cried: "What do you lack now—your collar or your cuffs?" "Please, ma'am," came the reply, "it's the milkman."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Real Pessimist.

A kind-hearted old gentleman heard a small boy crying lustily in the street outside and went out to inquire the cause of his grief. "M-mother g-gave me t-two c-cents, and I've l-o-o-s-t 'em!" "Well, never mind, here are two cents," and the good man turned back into his yard. But as the boy broke into fresh sobs louder and harder than ever, the old gentleman returned and inquired: "Well, well, what are you crying about now? "If I h-had-n't l-lost my t-two p-pennies, I'h h-have four now," was the reply.—Life.

It Might Work.

"I think I have hit on an invention," said the fat plumber, "that will make my fortune." "New kind of mop?" the thin carpenter inquired facetiously. "Not on your life." "Patent clotherpin, I suppose." "You've got another suppose coming." "Then what is it? Talking machine?" "But the world is talked to death now." "This is different." "In what way?" "It only uses three sentences, one at a time." "What does it say?" "It says in gruff tones: 'Who is at the door?' 'Get me my gun' and 'Call the patrol wagon.'" "But what is the idea?" "I am going to sell them to maiden ladies so they can make unwelcome strangers think there is a man in the house."—Rochester Times.

CONFERENCE ON CANAL TERMINALS

Albany, Feb. 1.—The committee appointed recently comprising representatives of the cities of Yonkers, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Kingston, met with the state engineer and state superintendent of public works yesterday, for the purpose of discussing the general situation relative to the lack of provision made by the state for barge canal terminals in those cities after the completion of the barge canal.

There was present Mayor Canfield of Kingston, Judge Arnold of Poughkeepsie, Fred Wilson of Newburgh and Alexander Stoltz of Yonkers.

The above committee representing the Hudson Valley Chamber of Commerce, also recently formed, and made up of representatives of cities along the Hudson river, expressed the belief in earnest tones, that the cities named should be provided with terminals.

The situation which was to the effect that it was understood that should there be any remainder of the appropriation made for the construction of barge canal terminals up state that such residue would be applied to the construction of terminals in Hudson river cities was dealt with.

State Engineer Williams pointed out that he did not think that there would be anything left over and stated that at least there was no indication that there would be.

Senators John A. Stivers of Middletown and Charles W. Walton of Kingston, later met with the committee and discussed with them the question of proposed legislation for barge canal terminals in Newburgh and Kingston. The question, which was the most important one was whether when drafted, the bill or bills should provide a lump sum for the construction of terminals for Newburgh, Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Yonkers, the respective amounts for each terminal to be left for the canal board to decide, or whether a specified amount should be provided for each separate proposed terminal. This question was not definitely decided.

Both Senators Stivers and Walton expressed themselves as ready to have the necessary bill or bills drafted and promised to introduce them as the proper time.

Keator, who heads the cast, is a versatile actor and plays a very difficult part, with Howard Basten his son and Fred Gillespie the Dutchman, who is a scream all through, as is also Harry Snyder, the colored servant; assisted by Mrs. J. The beautiful birthday cake was prepared by his grandmother, Mrs. Andrew Middagh. The cocoa was also poured by Grandma Middagh.

A number from here sojourned to Kingston on a sleigh ride party one evening recently, while there visiting the tabernacle to hear Mr. Peacock speak.

Nearly all the autos are laid up for the winter. Those who are still using their autos are cautioned to display their new number plates and avoid being fined. The new licenses for 1917 are of a rather pretty design.

The weather prophets, of which this small hamlet has many, predicted a mild and open winter this year. Their predictions so far seem to be nearly right, as the snow fall has not exceeded a foot during the entire winter, although we have had considerable good sleighing.

Several from here visited Rosendale and Kingston the past week where they took the regents examinations.

Several from here attended the funeral of Miss Jeannette Hover at the Marbletown Church on Friday afternoon.

DEAD HORSE ASSET OF A BANKRUPT

A dead horse as an asset of a bankrupt estate was one of the features which made the appraisal of the estate interesting on Wednesday when Lawyer Henry Klein, James Johnson and Clifford T. Bennett visited Laokawack to appraise the property of Winfield McIntyre, who conducted a general store there until recently when he filed a petition in bankruptcy.

The horse belonged to Mr. McIntyre and broke its neck in the barn two weeks ago. Mr. McIntyre had no money to pay for burying it. Besides, there might be a question of his right to remove any of the property from the barn, even for the purpose of interment. The trustee of the bankrupt estate was not aware of the dead horse, and when the town board of health was notified that the horse needed burial it sent back word that there were no funds for that purpose.

Although horsehide has increased considerably in value, there is no liklihood that any of the creditors will now claim the horse or that they will innsist on its further preservation as an asset.

There will be services every Sunday with preaching by candidates and supplies.

Rabbit hunting season is over. Now the worthy farmers can go around and lay up their stone walls. Small wonder that more properties are being posted every year.

It's well that our ice houses are all filled as no one would care to store ice in the form of cubes even if there is snow now to draw it on.

Gilboa and the other "submersibles" have our sympathy. In the spring their people will enter the chaotic state, which can be likened only unto house cleaning time. We had seven years of it off and on, mostly on, so we know whereof we speak.

TRUTH.

Cherish the truth. Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it out. It is always upon our lips and is ready to drop out before we are aware. A lie is troublesome and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one trick needs a great many more to make it good.

LIFE'S OBJECT.

The object of true upbringing lies not in merely inducing men to do good things, but to find joy in doing them: not only to maintain purity, but to love purity; not to practice justice only, but to long and yearn for justice, to work for it, to battle for it if need be.—John Ruskin.

An Avis Lecture-Recital.

On Tuesday evening, February 20th, Edward Avis will give an illustrated lecture-recital, "Birdland," in the high school auditorium under the auspices of the Burroughs Junior Audubon Society. Mr. Avis has given his lecture with great success and has always delighted his audiences. A short time ago he was employed for three weeks by the Massachusetts Humane Society to give his recital and was heard in twenty different schools by between 20,000 and 25,000 boys and girls. The Boston teachers are warm in their praise of Mr. Avis and his work.

Candlemas Service in Holy Cross.

Friday, February 2nd, is the Feast of the Purification, also called Candlemas. At Holy Cross Church the day will be observed, like in other years, with very elaborate ceremonies. At the evening service at 7:30 there will be blessing of the candles and the beautiful "Procession of Lights" in which the whole congregation takes part. Father Lange will preach a sermon on some of the differences between the "old fashioned" methods of educating children in home, school and church, and the "modern" methods. Everybody interested in children are cordially invited to be present.

Feathered Visitor in Town.

Kingston city is having an unusually varied group of feathered visitors this winter. In addition to the English sparrows, whom we have always with us and the English starlings, also an occasional crow and grackle, several of the sociable and cheery little red breasted nuthatches have been seen in the vicinity of Green, Crown and John streets. A little larger than the wren, they present a pretty winter picture with their rosy breasts, their slate blue backs and the tail feathers barred with white near the end which is tipped with pale brown. Their call, scarcely a song, is as cheery as their appearance.

Menu for Holy Cross Supper.

The following delicious viands will be served at the supper to be given at Holy Cross parish house on Tuesday evening of next week, from 5 to 8 o'clock: Chicken pie, a la Maryland, mashed potatoes, peas, cranberry sauce, celery, pickles, cold slaw, bread and butter, apple and mince pie, ice cream and cake, tea and coffee. The supper will be followed by a dance, for which good music has been secured, and the price of supper tickets will include the dance.

(U. S. Senator Cummins).

Washington, Feb. 1.—A strenuous battle to prevent a debate upon the president's peace message is expected when the resolution of Senator Cummins calling for an open discussion is called up in the senate. The resolution is upon the calendar and cannot be taken up except by vote. Almost any motion, however, will suffice for Senator Cummins to base a speech upon, so that a debate is practically certain. Senator Borah, who has a resolution pending to reaffirm the Monroe Doctrine, and which is looked upon as a slap at President Wilson's peace message, has said that he will not allow his resolution to interfere with that of Senator Cummins, and that he will stand out of the way.

What Good is the Weather Bureau?

This question is likely to be asked in more or less querulous tones whenever the local weather prediction fails, as it often does. The inquirer overlooks the fact that the weather bureau has much more important things to foretell than ordinary changes of weather. It predicts with certainty great windstorms, destructive floods, severe freezes and other atmospheric visitations that endanger life and property on a large scale and collects climatic statistics for scientific agriculture.—Popular Science Monthly.

TESTIMONY TO WEBER'S CHARACTER

After the opening of court this morning, Charles Mullen, was called by the defense to swear to Weber's good character. He said he knew Weber ten years and his reputation always seemed to be good, which he explained by saying Weber lived for three years in a house next to the tobacco factory on North Front street and always paid his rent and did no damage.

Superintendent John H. Harrison of the Kingston water department testified he had known Weber since a year ago last fall; knew nothing about him except his business connections and never heard anyone say anything against him.

Hiram Bell of 287 Washington avenue, bookkeeper for Everett & Treadwell, had known Weber six or eight years and said his reputation was good.

Ernest W. Kearney, blacksmith, of 160 Main street, had known Weber 8 or 10 years and said his reputation was good. Cross-examined, he could recall only his father having said Weber's reputation was good.

Didn't See Elmendorf's False Teeth.

Policeman Hess, re-called, said he was at the city hall when he first heard of the trouble and left there on the ambulance between 5 and 5:30 o'clock.

Cross-examined, he said Elmendorf was placed in the tonneau of the automobile, with a sheet wrapped completely around him. His hands and arms were under the sheet, which was not immediately removed when they reached the sanitarium. When Elmendorf vomited, it was in the sheet, and he did not see any false teeth or did not see Elmendorf reach down with his fingers and place the teeth back in his mouth. Brown supported Elmendorf's head on the way down.

Mrs. Herrick Re-called.

Mrs. Lois Herrick, re-called, testified when she went in the Elmendorf kitchen it was a few minutes after five o'clock; she thought she looked at the clock as she usually did. It was after five o'clock when she left the kitchen—she did not know exactly the time.

Conversation at Salvation Army Barracks.

Harrison Winchell, who is employed by the Mullen Tobacco Company testified that he attended the Salvation Army services last Sunday night and had a conversation with Mrs. Aurelia Halstead. He was not allowed to testify to this conversation because Mrs. Halstead's attention had not been directed to it while she was on the stand, and he was withdrawn.

Mrs. Halstead was called by the defense and said she met the Winchells at the Salvation Army barracks Sunday night. Winchell asked her how she was getting along and she said she didn't know. She denied that she had said to Winchell that she saw Charley Elmendorf coming through the yard and he had something in his hand but she could not tell what it was, and that after he had gone out of the gate Weber struck him with the gun.

Winchell was then re-called and testified that Mrs. Halstead told him she saw Elmendorf coming out of the yard with something in his hand but she could not tell what it was; that he went out of the gate and Weber struck him after he was outside the gate.

Cross-examined, Winchell said nobody else was within eight feet of himself, his wife and Mrs. Halstead when the latter made that statement; the adjutant was there and a couple of ladies, but he did not know any of their names. He had gone there to hear the preaching and after the conversation he went home. He first mentioned the conversation Wednesday night at the tobacco factory, in the presence of Charles J. Mullen, Margaret Mullen, Jake Sauter and Will Harris. Jake Sauter told Mr. Brooks about it. Winchell was a witness in the Darwin Hinkley case.

Mrs. Ethel L. Winchell, wife of Harrison Winchell, testified to the same statement, amplifying it by saying Mrs. Halstead had said that when she saw Weber with a gun, she was so frightened she did not think about herself but stepped in front of Mrs. Elmendorf and got shot herself.

Before her marriage Mrs. Winchell was a Terwilliger, living two miles outside of Whiteport. Her husband did not ask any other questions.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Winchell's testimony J. I. Waterman was called by the defendant but he was not put on the stand at the time but was held to be used in rebuttal.

With the testimony of Mrs. Winchell the defendant rested and District Attorney Traver offered the minutes of the grand jury in regard to Mrs. Weber's testimony in evidence. The part of the testimony given before the grand jury by Mrs. Weber in regard to what happened on the night of August 9, when she heard the gun shot, was received.

In her testimony before the grand jury, Mrs. Weber testified that she came out of the cellar and while in the house heard the gun go off. She then ran out doors and saw the two men fighting in the road.

When on the witess stand on Wednesday she testified that she saw two men fighting when she came out of the house and that was before the gun had been fired. After she returned to the house the gun was fired.

Brooks Offers Map.

Mr. Brooks asked to re-open the case in order that he might offer a map in evidence. He explained that he had hoped to intoduce it in rebuttal but the District Attorney had disappointed him and he had no chance to do so and the case was re-opened and John F. Hallinan was called and stated certain distances on the map. The distances between the houses being explained and the location of the different houses marked.

On cross examination Mr. Hallinan said that there were about ten trees in the rear of the Weber house and all of them were smair with the exception of one large cherry tree. He also said that he had noticed dead vines on the fence between the two properties on Saturday when he was there making the map. Whether they interferred with the vision of some of the witnesses was the point which the testimony answered.

At 11:15 the case was closed and an adjournment taken until 2 o'clock this afternoon when both sides summed up. Both sides will finish their summing up before court adjourns this evening.

Who Will be Sergeant?

WILSON'S ACTION IS KEPT SECRET

Probably He Has Asked for an Interpretation From Berlin of Certain Parts of the German Note.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 1.—President Wilson already has taken action in the new crisis precipitated by the German submarine ultimatum. The nature of this is a carefully guarded secret. It is suggested, however, in official quarters, that inquiry has been directed to Ambassador Gerard as to whether the German note implies a "blockade of the Entente territory" or the ruthless use of her submarines against all shipping. There was, however, no possibility of confirmation of this as all inquiries at both the White House and the state department were returned unanswered.

The only word permitted came from administration sources in congress and was as follows:

"It would be improper to say that nothing has yet been done in the matter."

No explanation of this cryptic statement was forthcoming. It was learned during the morning that Secretary Lansing and President Wilson had a secret conference last night which lasted for one hour and a half. The entire German note was gone over carefully and a plan of definite action was considered.

Secretary Lansing unexpectedly left his office at the state department just before noon and went directly to the White House. Under his arm he carried a mass of papers.

Mr. Lansing left the White House at 1 p. m.

"Can say nothing now," he said.

SHERIFF CAPTURES UNION CENTER GUN

A telephone message from Union Center to the sheriff's office Wednesday night took Sheriff Shultis and Jailer Jocelyn to that place to investigate a report that Chauncey Terpening had locked his wife in one of the rooms of their house and had a shot gun with which neighbors feared he might shoot somebody.

Terpening and his wife had been "jangling" most of the day. Terpening and his four children denied that he had locked Mrs. Terpening in any room or threatened to shoot her. They said she had gone to the upper floor and closed the trap door so that the lower part of the house would get warm and the heat would not go upstairs. While she was upstairs, which is not heated, she had done some shouting, but nobody attempted to keep her there, they said. Mrs. Terpening said she had been compelled to stay upstairs but was not specific.

Sheriff Shultis advised the family to stop jangling and brought the shot gun to the court house for safe keeping.

Friday is Candlemas Day.

Friday will be Candlemas day. The date occupies a place in popular lore from the fact that upon it hinges the tale of the groundhog as a weather prophet. The old wives' story is that the groundhog comes forth from his burrow on Candlemas day; if he can see his shadow he goes back to sleep for 40 days more confident that spring will be tardy. On the other hand, if the sun does not shine, he goes back to come forth in an early spring.

Sergeant Murray Retires.

After twenty-five years' active service in the local police department, Sergeant T. J. Murray retired from active duty Wednesday evening when he turned over his "tools of the trade" to Chief Wood. The sergeant has not been enjoying the best of health for the past year, which led to him handing in his resignation from the force. He will be greatly missed from the department as he was one of the most capable officers Kingston ever had.

IT WAS YOUNG FOLKS' NIGHT

At Tabernacle—Spirited Services—High School Gives School Yell and Cheers Evangelist—1,267 Have Hit Trail—Collection for Industrial Home.

Giving the school yell and winding up with a cheer for Evangelist L. K. Peacock, the large delegation of high school students who attended the services Wednesday evening at the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle added zip and zest to a spirited service. There were also large delegations present from the young people's societies and organizations, and from the Industrial Home, and it was a real young folks' night with the evangelist preaching the sermon on "The White Life" especially for them. The collection, which amounted to nearly $58, was turned over to the Industrial Home. While the collection was being taken up the high school delegation sang the school song with much spirit and vim.

Colored Churches Tonight.

This evening the colored churches of the city will attend service in a body and seats will be reserved for them in the center of the tabernacle. There will be special singing and the evangelist will speak. Everyone is welcome at the meeting.

A Clean Life.

The evangelist took his text from 119th Psalm the 9th verse: "Wherewith shall a young man cleanse his way?" He said that this was a most important question for the young folks to consider, and that it was concisely answered by the next verse of the Psalm which says: "By taking heed thereto according to Thy word."

Every right thinking person in the world has a desire to do right. Every one should make this a personal question: "How can I lead a good clean life? How can I be a blessing to the world?"

Cannot Erase Scars.

Everyone has sinned and transgressed God's law. You may sin, and God may forgive you, but the scars will remain. Every one wants to make a success in life but we need some higher power to guide us. We need some one to steer us safe through the shoals of sin, and that one is Christ, the great pilot.

Look Back Again.

As the older folks look back over their past life and think of the people they associated with when a child and when they grew older all along the shores of life they will see ruined characters and damned souls of those who tried to guide their lives without the aid of God.

Why They Lost Out.

The evangelist told briefly the story of two young men who attended college when he did. Both were famous athletes and both were exceptionally bright in their studies, but they had faults; they drank a little, used profanity, smoked cigarettes and led an impure life. Today they are both down and out. They lost out because they thought they knew how to guide their own lives and did not need God.

Watch First False Step.

In closing he urged the young folks not to take the first false step, as it was so easy to trod the way of sin after the first step had been taken. He advised them to build themselves up physically and mentally and spiritually.

75 Hit Trail.

At the close of the sermon the evangelist extended an invitation to those present to consecrate themselves to God by coming forward, and seventy-five men and women, young and old, accepted the invitation and hit the trail. A large number of the high school delegation came forward.

Trail Hitters Number 1,267.

This makes the total number of trail hitters so far during the campaign 1,267 men and women, boys and girls, who have publicly expressed a determination to consecrate themselves to God.

Heavy Storm Broke Out.

That the big tabernacle is water tight was plainly shown Wednesday evening while the services were in progress and the rain beat like bullets on the roof of the building, but the roof did not leak.

Had Picture Taken.

Bible Class Friday.

Friday afternoon Mr. Warth will have charge of a Bible class at the tabernacle and all interested in the study of the Bible are urged to attend.

Services Arranged.

Friday evening the evangelist will speak on Heaven and Saturday evening on Hell. There will be three services for every person on Sunday.

Next week will be Denominational Night at the tabernacle. Tuesday will be Baptist night, Wednesday will be Presbyterian night, Thursday will be Methodist night and Friday will be Reformed night.

BONTICOU.

Bonticou, Jan. 31.—A number of young people spent a most enjoyable evening last Wednesday at the home of Jesse Van Kleeck to whom they gave a surprise party.

Eugene Geary has two new iron-gray colts.

There were services at the Dashville Reformed Church on Sunday. There were several new faces in the congregation. We hope that they may soon be as familiar as the rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Kleeck have been spending a few weeks at the home of their daughter in Jersey City.

Two of the teamsters on Woodcrest have been ill the past week, but they are recovered.

It is rumored that there is a new automobile stage to go from Kingston to Rosendale and thence to New Paltz. This will be a convenience much looked for by the people of this place.

Mrs. Wolken and her family and Mrs. Osmers of Tillson were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Freer on Sunday.

The Unlaid Eggs

The grain-fed hen usually carries a number of unlaid eggs—yolks which she cannot complete into eggs and lay, because her feed lacks the necessary white-forming nutrients. (That's why egg-yolks are found in a hen, when it is dressed). Many of these yolks of unfinished eggs are finally absorbed back into the hen's system.

Missouri Experiment Station tests showed that 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats, barley and kaffir corn make (above bodily maintenance) an average of 224 yolks and only 154 whites. Based on data from the same experiments, Purina formulas produce, (above bodily maintenance) as follows:—

Purina Scratch Feed	247.49 yolks	142.11 whites
Purina Chicken Chowder	182.05 "	282.55 "
Combined Ration	429.54 yolks	424.66 whites

These feeds, used in combination, form the most perfectly balanced and economical egg producer you can buy. Purina Chicken Chowder is the egg-completing ration; containing exactly the right feed elements to make the necessary whites. That's why we can positively guarantee

More eggs or money back

on Purina Chicken Chowder if fed with Purina Scratch Feed as directed. You take no risk. Write for further information and for our

KINGSTON N Y, FEB 1, 1917

It is difficult to comment in temperate language upon Germany's announcement that she is about to violate her solemn pledges to the United States to abstain from murder of non-combatants on the high seas When she originally issued her forbidden zone proclamation two years ago she proposed to allow four American ships a week to ply between this country and England but now reduces this number to one at the same time adding additional regulations to such traffic Never before was such effrontery offered to a great nation Evidently the Kaiser considers that we are in the same class with China Even the supine Wilson can hardly pass over this crowning insult with one of his celebrated notes In April of last year he declared officially that a renewal of illegal submarine activities would be followed by a severance of diplomatic relations with Germany There is now no other honorable course for him to pursue If it plunges us into war, as seems probable, that cannot be helped There are some things worse than war

The most prodigious business proposition ever conceived by human mind has been formulated by the new Empire Resources Committee of the British Government It contemplates wiping out the entire war debt by a tremendous real estate speculation managed in such a way as to make failure impossible The idea is to buy 2,000,000 acres of land in the western provinces of the Dominion of Canada from the Canadian Government, on condition that the entire purchase price be promptly expended in improving the property, so that it can soon be sold to settlers at a price which will produce a net profit of at least $20,000 000 000 Under this plan, which is doubtless feasible Canada would as a Government lose a considerable section of territory which has at present but small value and would be out a relatively small amount of interest money, but as an offset to this would receive for ever after huge revenues from taxes on the settlers on the improved lands Great Britain would get rid of her war debt and be able to look forward to a future more prosperous than her past The purchasers of the improved lands would get homes in a desirable country at bargain prices It is a good transaction which profits everybody concerned We have heard of nothing so wonderful since the day of the man who tried to lift himself by his boot straps By the way how much has the United States made by irrigating its deserts?

TAXATION

Many of the franchise valuations fixed by the New York State Board of Tax Commissioners for 1917 show increases and only a few show decreases The trend of such valuations has been upward ever since they became taxable, but usually the courts sustain the upward movement, which is a good indication that the franchises themselves have become more valuable Corporations as a rule are bearing their just share of taxation in more equitable proportion than individuals and in some cases are overtaxed In order that political aspirants or legislatures may point with pride to their records in avoiding a direct tax—a fact which is supposed to make everyone connected with such a combination solid with his constituents The result of over-imposition of indirect taxes is to raise the cost of living, because if it is possible to pass along increased costs or expenses to the ultimate consumer such cost is passed Taxation has become more complex, just as our system of government has assumed a more intricate and complicated aspect

As all communities increase, whether they are small villages or great commonwealths, the cost of government increases Education is one of the items of this increased cost, whether it is given in schools or through officials whose duties of value are not yet of exact determination Education does make people more self reliant and less in need of the bludgeon that was necessary in controlling primitive people as they increased, but at the same time it furnishes people with a keener perception of their wants and how to satisfy them, all of which means increased taxation which must come from the people themselves

Human nature being what it is and what it has been since the creation of the world, mankind is first looking to satisfy his wants at the expense of somebody else, and this is demonstrated in one way by taxation of public franchises, which for years were regarded as not being subject to tax. Such taxation is only one step in the direction of scientific and accurate distribution of tax Until the system becomes more perfect, relief might be obtained by curtailing expenses, but when that proposal is put into effect the really useful institutions of modern government suffer while useless appendages continue undisturbed because of the innate human desire not to disturb a good fellow who either holds a public job or who associates for business reasons with those who do

CONFERENCE ON CANAL TERMINALS

Albany, Feb 1—The committee appointed recently comprising representatives of the cities of Yonkers, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Kingston, met with the state engineer and state superintendent of public works yesterday, for the purpose of discussing the general situation relative to the lack of provision made by the state for barge canal terminals in those cities after the completion of the barge canal

There was present Mayor Canfield of Kingston, Judge Arnold of Poughkeepsie, Fred Wilson of Newburgh and Alexander Stoltz of Yonkers

The above committee representing the Hudson Valley Chamber of Commerce, also recently formed, and made up of representatives of cities along the Hudson river, expressed the belief in earnest tones, that the cities named should be provided with terminals

The situation which was to the effect that it was understood that should there be any remainder of the appropriation made for the construction of barge canal terminals upstate that such residue would be applied to the construction of terminals in Hudson river cities was dealt with

State Engineer Williams pointed out that he did not think that there would be anything left over and stated that at least there was no indication that there would be

Senators John A Stivers of Middletown and Charles W Walton of Kingston, later met with the committee and discussed with them the question of proposed legislation for barge canal terminals in Newburgh and Kingston The question, which was the most important one was whether when drafted the bill or bills should provide a lump sum for the construction of terminals for Newburgh Kingston Poughkeepsie and Yonkers the respective amounts for each terminal to be left for the canal board to decide, or whether a specified amount should be provided for each separate proposed terminal This question was not definitely decided

Both Senators Stivers and Walton expressed themselves as ready to have the necessary bill or bills drafted and promised to introduce them at the proper time

CAMELS OF AFRICA

Superb Animals Used by the Arabs When on the Warpath.

TRAINED FOR GREAT SPEED.

These Mehari, as They Are Called, Can Cover a Hundred Miles a Day Without Undue Fatigue, and They Are Never Worked as Beasts of Burden.

"There are almost as many varieties of camels as horses," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society. "The Arab name for camel is djemel. Those of Tunisia, Tripolitania and Algeria have one hump and are really dromedaries. Certain breeds of camel can withstand the great heat of the Sahara and others that of the zero weather of Tibet and China.

"It is amazing to see the rapidity with which a herd of 500 camels will eat to the ground a large pasturage of prickly pear from eight to ten feet high. Leaves, stems, prickles and all disappear like magic.

"In many parts of Africa the natives keep all their date stones and give them to exhausted camels, weary from their long Sahara march. The camel resists at first, and the date stones, moistened in a little water, are pushed forcibly by the handful down the camel's throat after it has been made to kneel and then securely fastened. In two or three days the camel learns to eat them of its own accord. The natives say that these date stones make the hump of the camel strong and stiff.

"The camel in its long march across the Sahara frequently finds very little to eat and lives on the fat of its own hump. When this continues during a long time the hump becomes flabby and almost disappears.

"The usual weight of the burdens carried by a camel varies from 550 to 600 pounds for journeys from town to town or on the border of the desert. Going across the desert the burden is less. When a camel is being laden it keeps up a continual snarling, and should it be overburdened it refuses to arise. Most camels are vicious, and their bite is very dangerous. Hardly a week passes at the large native hospital in Tunis but some unfortunate camel driver dies of blood poisoning caused by a camel's bite. The grinding motion of a camel's jaw crushes to pulp whatever it bites, so that the arm or leg has to be amputated, and blood poisoning usually sets in before the patient can reach the hospital.

"In the interior of northern Africa is a superb race of camels, known as the mehara (singular, mehari), or racing camels. The mehara owe a great deal to the care taken in their breeding during the past 2,000 years. Ancient writers speak of camels used by the army of Xerxes, more than 2,000 years ago, that had the speed of the fastest horses. These were doubtless mehara.

"When a baby mehari is born it is swathed in bandages to prevent the stomach from getting too large and is taken into the family tent, where it is nursed and watched over with care and tenderness. When a year old it is sheared and is known from then on as a bou-keutaa, which means 'the father of the shearing.'

"When it is two years old the mehari's training begins. A halter is placed around the head and a cord tied to one of the fore feet. It is kept quiet first by gestures and the voice, later by the voice alone. Then the cord is loosened, but should it make a step it is tied again. Finally it understands what is required, but the lessons are only terminated when it will stand in one place without moving for an entire day.

"To make the camel a fast runner the rider whips it on both flanks with a rhinoceros hide whip and cries out in Arabic to excite it. A young mehari is very fond of its own skin and on being struck starts on a gallop. The whipping keeps up, and the camel tries to get away by running faster. The long legs seem like wings, and it flies past with the speed of an ostrich. It will stop instantly at a pull on the rein, no matter what speed it has been making.

"When the rider jumps off or should he happen to fall, a well trained mehari will stand quite still and wait, while should the master happen to be injured the faithful beast will never leave him.

"A mehari is never used as a beast of burden. All it ever carries is a saddle (something like a Mexican saddle, made of gazelle skin, dyed red, with a high pommel and a cross in front), two saddlebags and a rider. The rider is buckled into the saddle by two belts. His feet are crossed in front of the saddle and rest on the neck of the mehari. His slippers are usually slung across the pommel, and the mehari is guided by the wriggling of the rider's toes.

"An iron ring passes through one nostril of the animal, and a rein of camel's hair is attached.

"The mehara are used entirely by the Arabs when on the warpath, or razzia. A mehari on the warpath can save three men. Two ride it, and the third takes hold of its tail and is pulled along. The latter changes places with the rider at intervals. When a war party has lost so many camels that there remains but one camel for every three men it always retreats.

"When going at full speed a mehari has a most remarkable single foot or pacing step, the motion of which is not at all disagreeable, and it can cover quite easily 100 miles in a day without undue fatigue."

What's the Department For?

"Wife, what's all this about? Here's a letter on fertilizers, stating that your farm needs so many tons to the acre." "It's all right, hubby. I sent a sample of soil to the agricultural department. My geranium hasn't been doing very well."—Judge.

Incognito and Incognita

By ELINOR MARSH

"Is Miss Watriss at home?" asked a middle aged man of a maid who answered his call at the front door of a handsome country residence.

"I'll see, sir."

The gentleman dropped a card on the salver the maid held to him, bearing the name of Alonzo Tewkesbury, and she took it upstairs, while the gentleman stepped into a reception room.

Mr. Tewkesbury had complained to his friend Mrs. Sansom that he had neglected to marry during the youthful mating period and had before him the prospect of living all his life without a companion or a home. Mrs. Sansom had replied that she had a woman friend who had a similar prospect before her.

"You are both well off," she said, "in this world's goods and would make a good match."

This led to an arrangement made by Mrs. Sansom, with a view to bringing the parties together, and Mr. Tewkesbury was making his first call on Miss Watriss.

Presently a woman, plainly but neatly dressed, came down with the card in her hand and said:

"Mr. Tewkesbury, I am Miss Watriss' housekeeper, Mrs. Hawkins. Miss Watriss has been unavoidably called away. She has commissioned me to say to you that she may return any time during the day and if you will await her coming she will be glad to see you. I am directed to do what I can to enable you to fill in the time. We have a fine library, and I can furnish you with the late magazines."

"H'm!" said Mr. Tewkesbury thoughtfully. "Are you in Miss Watriss' confidence?"

"Somewhat."

"Are you aware of the object of this call?"

"I am."

"Then I know of no better way to pass the time than for you to tell me something about Miss Watriss."

"Miss Watriss is simply a woman like any other woman. She is neither very good nor very bad. She has a good income, but finds it difficult to live within it."

"Then you think she desires to add to it?"

"Most assuredly. Miss Watriss is practical. She knows that much more can be done with a union of two incomes than with one. The party of the second part would share in this advantage."

"She is right in that. This romance of marrying without giving due consideration to such matters pertains to the young and foolish."

"It is well that you look at it in that light. This proposed marriage is, I take it, on the same order as European marriages where romance is made subservient to common sense."

"That's it. There is too much romance and too little sense in American marriages. Besides, a man of forty and a woman—you say thirty-five?—can't go about a courtship as a couple in their teens."

"Are there any other questions you would like to ask?"

"You are very kind to furnish me with this information."

"Not at all. Miss Watriss told me before she left to answer truthfully any questions you might ask and to tell you especially that which she would not like to say herself; that one of the considerations in making the proposed match would be a matter of money. Her income is six thousand a year."

"That will be satisfactory to me. You may say to Miss Watriss for me that my income from my business and other sources varies from five to fifteen thousand, a business income being nearly always uncertain."

"Don't you think that it would be a good idea for you to see Miss Watriss without her knowing that you are Mr. Tewkesbury?"

"A splendid idea! But how could it be accomplished?"

"Men are very stupid about such things. I have only to tell some friend who knows Miss Watriss to introduce you as Mr. Jones."

"Good! Thanks for the suggestion. Perhaps I'd better not wait for Miss Watriss to return. I'll have a look at her, as you suggest. You won't give me away in this matter, will you?"

"Oh, no! I think you are entitled to see the lady you think of proposing to incog before proceeding in the matter."

"And Miss Watriss should see me incog, too, shouldn't she?"

"Oh, Miss Watriss is perfectly able to form and carry out her own plans. I wouldn't think of suggesting anything to her."

"Well, I'll bid you good morning. Much obliged for the idea you have given me."

Mr. Tewkesbury took his leave and straightway went to Mrs. Sansom.

"Do you think you could bring Miss Watriss here to meet me as Mr. Jones without her suspecting that I'm Sam Tewkesbury?"

"Of course I can."

"Then please do so."

A few days later Mr. Tewkesbury received a telephone message from Mrs. Sansom that Miss Watriss was with her and for him to come over. He went and found Miss Watriss' housekeeper.

"Stung!" he exclaimed.

"I don't need to see you incog," she said, "for I have already seen you."

The match was made.

Getting Even.

"I don't know as it does any pertickler good, but it 'pears to sorter satisfy my children," said Mr. Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark. "Every time the preacher gets off what they think is too long a sermon, my kids whip the preacher's kids."

POULTRY FACTS

SCIENCE IN RAISING POULTRY

Important Problem Is to Ascertain How Many Eggs Each Hen Lays—Hens Make Best Mothers.

The time has come when more attention must be given to high production in the farm flock. It is not enough that the poultry fanciers breed up their layers and attempt to increase the strain. Farmers should breed up their own flocks.

We should know what the hens produce and let their stay on the farm depend upon what they pay. This is the only business way to look at poultry raising.

Trap nesting is the fancier's way. It is a good way, but other ways may be devised to keep records of the hens. The important problem is to find out how many eggs each hen lays and when she lays them.

Summer layers are not near as important as early spring and winter layers, for winter eggs always bring better prices, so do early spring eggs.

It follows from this that a hen that lays in winter, though she produces fewer eggs, may be more profitable than a summer layer.

But authorities tell us not to keep hens till they are very old. They say the second season is generally the best for a laying hen. But there is need of more records on this subject. Anyway, hens make better mothers when old than when pullets.

RUNNER DUCKS ARE FAVORED

Especially Adapted to Poultryman Who Wishes to Produce Eggs and Raise Some Meat.

The man who desires a dual purpose fowl will find the Runner duck suitable. This duck is especially adapted to the poultryman who wishes to produce eggs and to raise some meat at the same time.

They are perhaps not so good for meat as some of the other breeds, but they make good roasters, friers and broilers when they have been properly fed.

They are better layers than the average hen. From 200 to 250 eggs is not an uncommon yearly average for them under good care.

PROFITABLE TO RAISE GAME

Money Can Be Made With Pheasants, Buffalo and Deer—Feed Cost Is Not Very Large.

It costs no more to raise pheasants than chickens, and pheasants sell at from $5 to $50 a pair, according to the variety; the Chinese ring-neck sells at about $7.50 a pair.

It costs no more to raise a buffalo than a cow, while the former sells at about the price of ten cows; the cost of raising a deer is about the same as sheep, while the deer finds a ready market at from $15 to $50.

CULLS SHOULD BE FATTENED

When Undesirable Fowls Reach Proper Size They Should Be Placed In Pen and Fed Corn.

As soon as the culls have reached a proper size they should be fattened. Place them in a pen to themselves and feed them food that contains a large per cent of carbohydrates, such as corn, or its milling products. During the process of fattening do not give them any green food at all.

GIVING CHALK FOR DIARRHEA

Boiled With Rice It Will Cure and Pass Off Naturally—No Harm In Excessive Dose.

At the time of an outbreak of diarrhea, there often is a cry of cholera. It is a false cry, but the trouble needs treatment.

Boil some rice, and mix it with plenty of powdered chalk—an excess of this will do no harm, as it will effect a cure and pass off naturally.

Cover for Water Bottle.

A hot-water bag often proves to be the friend in need, and if possible one should provide a suitable dress for it. One seen recently was made of white flannel embroidered with a simple wreath in pink and green.

BILLY EVANS SOLVES BASEBALL PROBLEMS

(Written Especially for This Paper by the Famous American League Umpire.)

Winning a game after it looks like a cinch that the game is over is a trifle out of the ordinary, yet it happened in one of the minor leagues several years ago. The play so deceived the crowd that a goodly portion of them rushed on the field, and for te or fifteen minutes there was considerable confusion, with the umpire as the center of most of the storm.

The game was played between great rivals, the cities represented by the two teams being about 20 miles apart. It was a holiday contest and the clubs, because of the closeness of the two cities, played the morning game in one town and the afternoon contest in the other city. Several hundred visiting fans attended the morning game, and when it seemed as though the game was over, they began to celebrate, but all too soon.

In the last half of the ninth inning, the home team filled the bases after two were out. The visitors held a one run lead, so that a safe hit would at least tie, if not win, the game. It was up to the batter. He took a healthy wallop at the second ball pitched and sent up a pop fly which the first baseman caught. While the ball was still in the air, it was evident that much argument was taking place at the plate. The batter and catcher were saying things to each other, while the umpire was making a lot of frantic motions. As the ball was caught, all the visiting delegation, as well as many of the home rooters, surged on the field.

After much trouble and confusion the police managed to clear the field. Instead of the game being over, the score had been tied, the bases were still filled, and another good hitter up. He singled, driving in the winning run after the game had apparently been decided. Only one thing could have happened. What was it?

Answer to Problem.

Fearing that the man on third might attempt to steal home, he being noted for such stunts, the backstop of the visiting team was catching very close to the batter. The batter struck rather late at the ball, which he popped up to the first baseman for what appeared the third out. Unfortunately, the catcher tipped the bat of the batsman as he was about to swing, interfering with his efforts. The umpire could do only one thing, grant the batter first base and allow all the other runners to be advanced, as they were forced to do so to make room for the batter. This sent the run across the plate that tied the score, while the single by the next batter won the game that seemed lost. It is needless to add that the umpire had a very strenuous afternoon of it, for he had to shift with the teams to the other city.

AMERICANS FINE AS GOLFERS

John M. Ward, Expert Driver and Niblick, Believes United States Will Produce Star.

That the United States soon will produce the greatest golfers in the world is the opinion of John M. Ward, an expert with the driver and niblick.

John M. Ward.

His prediction is based on the vastly improved form of American players which, to Ward, was the feature of the 1916 golf season. If this improvement in playing form continues, says the veteran, American golfers as a class should at least be the equal, if not the superiors, of the English and Scotch players.

"What surprised me most," said Ward, "was the improved playing style of the majority of golfers. It was only a short time ago that about one golfer in ten played in correct form. This season I would say that seven out of ten knew the proper way to play their clubs. Those showing the best form were the young fellows.

"This means that most of the present stars who helped to make the sport so popular will be compelled to stand aside. With the proper instruction of our young players I should say that within ten years our golfers will be the best in the world."

COULDN'T KID JOE

"What'll you give me, Joe, if I don't crack out a hit?" said Jack Graney when he came to bat in the ninth inning of Bush's recent no-hit game. O'Neil and Coleman, the latter batting for Coumbe, had both struck out, each taken a healthy but fruitless swing at the third strike. Graney alone remained between Bush and fame.

"You know this means a lot to you, Joe," continued Jack in his bantering way, "and you ought to slip me a nice piece of change if I help you out. What do you say?"

Bush simply grinned, set himself to his task in a more determined manner than ever before, and forced Graney to pop to McInnis. Jack was the first to congratulate Joe.

ASK LONGER TENNIS SEASON

Only Trifle Over Three Months of Competition Out of Doors—Players Want More Time.

Lawn tennis has gradually attracted such an army of devotees that there has followed the real desires on the part of the players to prolong the season out of doors.

So far as the records of several years show for anything, there is at best only a trifle more than three months of competition on turf and clay surfaces before the changeable weather causes the wielders of the racquet to seek the enjoyment of the indoor game on the board courts of the armories. This immediately limits the amount of playing time and the number of players. It has not been the most satisfactory arrangement for those ardently devoted to the sport, so that gradually there has been some experimenting as to ways and means by which the outdoor season might be lengthened so as to offer fair sport for the followers of the courts.

It has been realized for some time that earth courts, even when in perfect condition, do not solve the problem. The frost and the rains of the autumn soon cause the clay surfaces to be unsatisfactory. What the frost and rain leave undone the brisk autumnal breezes accomplish, especially when the playing surfaces have been liberally sanded. The result has been to turn the attention of some of the players to court playing surfaces of boards and of concrete.

M'LEAN GETS ANOTHER TRIAL

Veteran Catcher Declares He Is Through Merrymaking and Gets Contract With Mathewson.

Wouldn't it look natural to see Larry McLean catching for the Reds?

During the recent National league meeting at New York Larry sought out Christy Mathewson. He made a good, straight talk, declared that he had, even so late in baseball life, realized that his days of merrymaking were all over, and asked a trial.

Larry was ably assisted by John McGraw, who gave him a strong boost and full forgiveness for the big row that ended Larry's connection with the Giants and organized ball two years ago. Mathewson gave his vote for taking Larry into the fold, and it was settled. Larry, so the story goes, gets his new contract from the Reds January 1, goes into gymnasium training right away and reports at Shreveport, March 1, with the rest of the boys.

New Coin Designs.

It is provided in section 3517, chapter 944, revised statutes of the United States, that the director of the mint shall have power, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, to cause changes to be made in the designs of coins not often than once in twenty-five years.

MRS MAE WHEELER RUPERTI

BRIDE CHARGES RUSS CAPTAIN HAS FLOWN TO ESCAPE SUIT.

New York, Feb. 1.—Mrs. Mae Wheeler Ruperti, who has instituted proceedings to procure a separation from Captain Serge Ruperti, of the Russian army, today told her counsel that she believes the soldier of the Czar has fled to Canada. Justice Cohalan, in the supreme court, after reading the complaint, issued an order for Captain Ruperti to show cause why his wife should not be granted a separation, $600 a month alimony and counsel fees. Mrs. Ruperti says that she met the captain after he had come here to buy munitions for his government. She asserts that he has an income of $18,000 a year. The papers in the case were served on him at the offices of the Imperial Russian Government Munition Commission, in the Flatiron Building.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Sleepy Time Story About a Very Interesting King.

WHAT HAPPENED IN THE WOOD

Thrilling and Unique Experience of a Little Boy Who Had Sharp Eyes. How a Kindly Act Was Rewarded. Summer Sports In Winter Time.

Well, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell a story about

BEES AND FAIRIES.

Once upon a time there was a little old lady who lived with her grandchild in a house not very far from the magic woods.

People said the magic woods were full of elves and fairies, and they were afraid to go there. Little Hans loved the woods, though. Whenever his grandmother would allow him he went wandering away in the forest.

"Perhaps, grannie, I may some day meet with the kind fairy folk, and if I do I will not let them go until they tell me how I can be a useful little boy," he said.

"You are a useful little boy, dearie," his grandmother would answer.

"But I wish I could earn some money to make you more comfortable," he said. "When I'm a great big man I shall work so hard that you can wear a silk dress every day in the week."

One day when Hans was out in the forest he noticed a huge spider's web, and right in the middle of it was a poor bee buzzing and struggling to get free.

Hans was a kind hearted boy, and he was sorry for the insect.

He broke the web so that the bee could fly away. It did not go far, but perched on the branch of a tree. Hans was surprised to hear it speak.

"Thank you, Hans," it said. "I am the king of the bees, and I must reward you for saving me from wicked old Ogre Spider, who would soon have made a meal of me. If you will do as I tell you you shall always have delicious honey to eat and sell."

Then the bee told Hans to gather the seed of certain flowers that grew in the magic wood and plant them in his grandmother's garden.

The little boy took the seed home and planted them. When the magic flowers bloomed they were all yellow and gave off a delicious fragrance. Hosts of bees swarmed to the garden and worked busily filling the hives with honey. When the queen came by one day in her carriage she stopped to look at the garden and taste of the honey.

So delicious was the sweet that she ordered that it should be put up in golden pots for her own special use. The queen paid the little old lady so much for this honey that the little boy's wish came true—his grandmother could have afforded a silk gown for every day in the week if she had cared to have one.

DEAD HORSE ASSET OF A BANKRUPT

A dead horse as an asset of a bankrupt estate was one of the features which made the appraisal of the estate interesting on Wednesday when Lawyer Henry Klein, James Johnson and Clifford T. Bennett visited Laokawack to appraise the property of Winfield McIntyre, who conducted a general store there until recently when he filed a petition in bankruptcy.

The horse belonged to Mr. McIntyre and broke its neck in the barn two weeks ago. Mr. McIntyre had no money to pay for burying it. Besides, there might be a question of his right to remove any of the property from the barn, even for the purpose of interment. The trustee of the bankrupt estate was not aware of the dead horse, and when the town board of health was notified that the horse needed burial it sent back word that there were no funds for that purpose.

Although horsehide has increased considerably in value, there is no likelihood that any of the creditors will now claim the horse or that they will insist on its further preservation as an asset.

To Make Your Will So It Can't Be Broken

"IN the United States each state has adopted its own statute directing the manner in which wills shall be made, based largely upon the English statute," states a lawyer. "In New York, for example, a will must be in writing, and must be signed by the testator. To this rule that the will must be in writing there is one statute granting an exception to soldiers in actual military service and sailors actually at sea. Wills by such persons may be made orally and are called nuncupative wills. They must be witnessed by at least two witnesses."

This expert went on to say that a will must be signed, literally, at the end of the paper upon which it is written, for if the testator signs anywhere but at the end of the will all that appears after his signature will not be considered a part of the will. "In making a will, therefore, do not use correspondence note paper, writing on the first page, then the third, then back to the second and end there, as is sometimes done in letters."

A case was cited where a will was so written and rejected by one surrogate. The decision was appealed and a higher court ruled that the paper from the beginning to the end of the two pages where the testator signed it, and the witnesses also, was a sufficient will, and that the remarks upon the third page could be disregarded. The lawyer explained the law for the testator signing the will personally or making his mark, and for at least two persons to witness the document, knowing that it is the will of the testator. The testator must sign first and the witnesses acknowledge his signature, and they must affix their addresses on the will. Failure to do this renders them liable to a penalty of $50 for each offense, and witnesses should be people who have addresses more or less permanent and whose handwriting can be easily proved in case of their decease before the testator. It is wise to have more than two witnesses, in case of the death of one, for there will then be less trouble to prove, and the property bequeathed may lie in a state where three witnesses are required.

By La Raconteuse.

Many fetching creations are found among the millinery novelties this season that strongly indicate the Japanese influence. The hat illustrated, with its deep rolled brim, is placed with a shirring of brocaded ribbon.

Deep silver fringe is set on in such a way as to form earlaps. The crown is of black chiffon velvet.

A NEW MENU.

How Flowers Can Be Used For Food and For Confections.

The food value of flowers is a matter that is just beginning to interest the scientific world, says the Pittsburgh Post. Violets are said to contain considerable nourishment. They formed the basis of a refreshing drink and in other forms figured conspicuously in the feasts of the ancient Persians. The modern confectioner crystallizes them in sugar.

The old Turkish confections made of rose leaves are declared delicious by those who have eaten them. A number of cooks have discovered that a handful of rose petals imparts a flavor of unparalleled delicacy to desserts of many kinds.

For those who do not care for sweets the gayly colored nasturtium offers delights to the palate. It may be used as a filling for sandwiches, mixed judiciously with other materials in salad. Its delicious pungency appeals to the epicure, while physicians say it aids digestion.

A favorite Italian dish consists of fried squash blossoms. When properly prepared this food is both appetizing and nourishing. The yellow blossoms of the common field pumpkin may be cooked in the same way.

HOUSE PLANTS IN WINTER.

How They Should Be Cared For in a Proper Manner.

"Don't fuss with your house plants until you kill them," is the warning given Kansas housewives and other lovers of flowers by M. F. Ahearn, professor of landscape gardening in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"Many amateurs," said Professor Ahearn, "do not realize that plant tissues need to rest as do the human tissues, and when the plant stops growing they begin to dig around the roots and then repot the plant. Plants should not be disturbed in winter.

"In caring for house plants keep the temperature between 60 and 70 degrees in the daytime and 50 to 65 at night. When plants are grown in an abnormally high temperature, with moisture, the growth becomes soft and they are easily injured. A strong draft, even if only 10 or 20 degrees cooler than the surrounding air, will seriously chill the plants."

Why Cats Are Able to See In the Dark.

The human eye can only perceive things which are revealed by light, and it requires a much greater amount of light to use the faculty of sight than is the case with animals of the cat family. These animals have the power of enlarging the eye pupil, thereby permitting the eye to obtain all of the light possible. As there is some light present in even the darkest places, this is a distinct advantage and enables cats "to see in the dark."

Why Popcorn "Pops" and How to Produce Best Results.

Nature puts the "pop" in popcorn by means of starch grains within the corn. Each grain of corn is subdivided into many cells, and when subjected to heat the moisture and starch in these cells explode, which supplies the "pop" so dear to childish hearts. The more heat the better the "pop," turning the grain inside out.

Diedrich Knickerbocker.

It may be that a Dutchman named Knickerbocker did live in the early history of New York, but if he did there age no records extant to prove it. The truth is, the name was created by Washington Irving, who applied it to all residents of New York in his time who happened to be descended from the early Dutch settlers. Irving used this quaint Dutch character in his "Knickerbocker History of New York" to burlesque the early days of the city. The volume purported to have been the work of Diedrich Knickerbocker and gave an amusing and satirical account of the early Dutch settlers. Records of the period tell us that the book bitterly offended their descendants, who never forgave Irving for his fling at them.—New York Times.

Heavy Rollers at St. Helena.

If the sea were to break on the shores of Coney Island in time of calm weather with the same force as it does on the shores of St. Helena sections of South Brooklyn would be uninhabitable in all likelihood. They have at St. Helena what are known as calemmas, or heavy rollers. These rollers are particularly bad in time of calm weather. They strike the island with such tremendous force that the spray is sent over Goat Pound ridge, which is several feet above sea level. Scientists are of opinion the calemmas are caused by seismic disturbances beneath the ocean.—Exchange.

Too Highly Complimented.

A Question of Sex.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Disease From Towels.

Do not use the towel any one else has used.

There is great danger of infection from using towels in public wash rooms.

The germs of disease remain active in a damp towel for fully twelve hours.

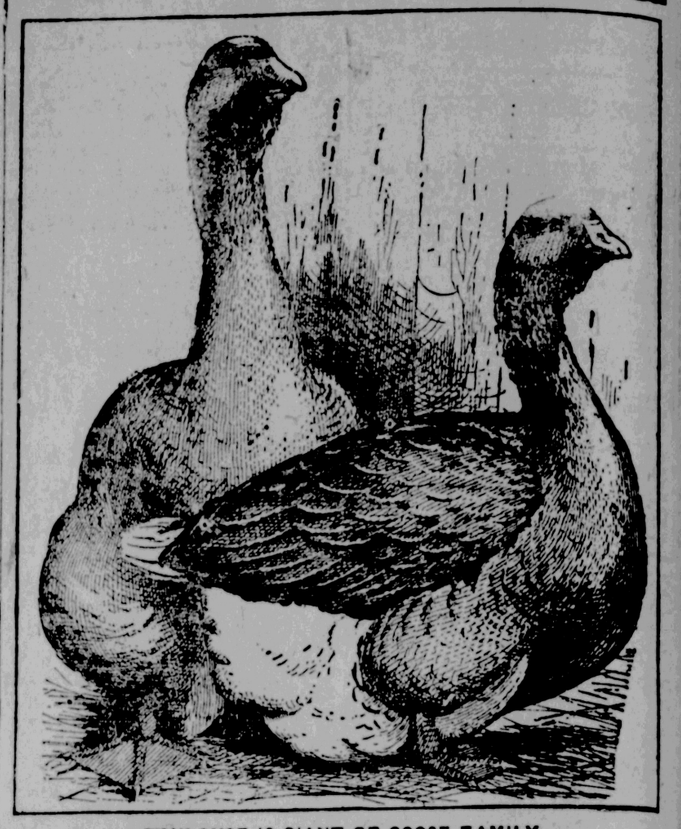
Loathsome skin diseases are spread by using the roller towel in a wash room of a public place.

Grave constitutional diseases are acquired by using a common towel in a store, office or factory.

It is far better to let the hands go undried than to wipe them on a towel which some one else has used.

Have your own towel in the home and have your own towel in the place where you are employed and let no one else use it.

POPULAR AND COMMON BREEDS OF GEESE



TOULOUSE IS GIANT OF GOOSE FAMILY.

The Toulouse is the giant of the goose family. It is a native of France. Its ordinary weight is from 15 to 20 pounds, but it is not uncommon to find specimens weighing from 25 to 30 pounds. This is the typical gray goose, but beneath and behind these are white areas in the plumage.

It is said by those who have had experience with this breed that young geese during the first year lay from 15 to 25 eggs, when older they may lay from 25 to 40.

The Embden is a popular breed in some places. The body of the birds is snowy white, the legs and bills yellow. They have good type and conformation. In size it is the same as standard for the Toulouse, though it is said a smaller number of Embden reach this standard than of Toulouse.

The Embden when well bred, properly fed and prepared makes a carcass that sells well on the market. But it is said that many breeders in this country have not given much attention to fine quality.

There are two varieties of Chinese geese, brown and white. This breed has different characteristics from the others mentioned. The birds stand more erect and have longer and slenderer necks than the others. The Brown Chinese have at the base of the bill a peculiar dark-colored knob. The Brown is considered the most prolific of all the geese. The standard weight for the gander is 15 pounds, geese 12 pounds. The female is said to lay from 40 to 50 eggs, sometimes more. A large per ceat of the eggs are generally fertile.

FEEDING WILL DOUBLE EGGS

Average Hen in Missouri Lays Sixty-Three Eggs Annually—Scantily Fed Hen Is Poor Investment.

(By H. L. Kempster, Missouri College of Agriculture.)

According to the United States census, Missouri's 21,000,000 hens lay 111,000,000 dozen eggs annually. If this is true, the average hen lays about 63 eggs a year. This is a poor record. One reason why hens are not more productive is because usually they are half fed. It is false economy to expect them to pick their living from the leavings of other stock. Many farmers admit that they feed their hens nothing during the summer. In so doing, they are saving feed but losing money.

A productive hen requires from 70 to 80 pounds of feed a year. If she gets only 40 to 50 pounds, she will simply satisfy her body requirements. She will not lay eggs. The scantily fed hen is a poor investment. It is only the liberally fed hen that yields the profit.

Farmers should keep dry ground feed, such as a mixture of bran, shorts and cornmeal, in hoppers before the hens at all times. Either sour milk or butter milk should be given as a drink. Crushed limestone or oyster shell should be before the hens all the time, and the hens should go to roost with full crops.

One correspondent wrote that after feeding according to the directions of the poultry department of the University of Missouri his hens laid twice as many eggs. These directions are given in circular 76, entitled "Feeding for Egg Production," which is distributed free.

KILL CHICKENS FOR MARKET

To Prevent Food Remaining in Crop and Intestines Fowls Should Be Starved 24 Hours.

The chickens must be starved 24 hours before killing. This will prevent the food remaining in the crop and intestines, which decomposes and spoils the flavor.

Several hours after the last feed allow the chickens what water they wish to drink. They should then have a complete fast until they are killed.

For market purposes, the birds should be killed by bleeding within the mouth and piercing the brain.

ENCOURAGE HENS TO CACKLE

See That Fowls Are Given Proper Food and Water and They Will Increase Egg Production.

Do the hens cackle? Eggs are worth 40 cents a dozen, or 3 1-3 cents a cackle.

You had plenty of cackles when the hens could catch bugs and worms (meat) and had green grass to eat and plenty of water.

See that they get the egg-producing feeds and they will cackle.

SELECT HENS WITH RECORDS

Mate Them With Cockerels of Good Laying Strains and Hatch From Them—Progress Slow.

The hen as we have her today has been developed very rapidly as an egg producer. The jungle fowl from which our laying hens have been developed probably laid about two dozen eggs a year at most. Perhaps many only raised one brood. Hens of anything like good type and breeding today may average 140 eggs a year. There are, of course, 200-egg hens and a few that have made records much higher. But these high records are by no means common.

It is said that a high average for a pullet is 150 eggs a year, for a hen 140. But we must remember that hens, like cows, have their own individuality and it is not easy to find a flock of high producers.

The way to increase the production of eggs is to select pullets or hens with high records, mate them with cockerels from good laying strains and hatch from them. Even then, the progress must be slow, for there is apt to be a large per cent that will be poor producers. But this is the only safe way to raise hens that lay a large number of eggs a year.

SELECTION OF BEST LAYERS

Look for Full, Well-Developed Breast and Crop—This Gives Assurance of Strength.

The selection of the best-laying hens may be made in several ways. If you know that the mother hens were good egg producers and the pullets have the same formation of the body it may be reasonable to expect that the pullets will also be fine egg producers. There is, however, one almost certain sign that may be used in selecting laying hens. Look for a full, well-developed breast and crop, showing a large pocket in which to carry the food supply. This gives assurance of strength and vigor, and the ability to consume a sufficient amount of food to sustain the body and produce the eggs.

She must have the ability to consume a large amount of food and the body and abdominal proportions to handle and transfer it into the general make-up of the body and the egg production.

FATTEN POULTRY IN CRATES

Special Ration of Cornmeal, Middlings, Bran and Buttermilk Adds Weight and Flavor.

To fatten poultry put them into a crate, keep them for a day without food, then give them a special ration of seven parts cornmeal, three parts middlings and one part bran, with buttermilk enough to make a mixture about as thin as pancake batter.

During the 10 or 14 days they are fed this ration they gain from 15 to 25 per cent in weight and much more than that in flavor.

GERMANY PLAYING HER LAST CARD

"Germany is playing her last and strongest card remaining to her. She is staking all on that card. She has a large number of U-boats available and that England will soon feel this campaign as perhaps nothing else before may safely be hazarded. Successful or unsuccessful, Germany's new campaign brings peace nearer. It is the super-crisis of the war and where the war will reach its highest curve."—Karl H. Von Wiegand, world famous war correspondent of the International News Service.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 1.—Long before the opening of the stock exchange today the shock in finanical and diplomatic circles caused by the new German under-sea program, had caused intense uneasiness in the Wall Street district. The board room floor was crowded for some time before the beginning of business with selling orders coming in to brokers offices in an absolute flood. Those who were forced to buy put in orders far below the market and when the gong sounded there was a general break in prices, with losses throughout the list generally extending from five to twenty points. First sales of Steel Common were fixed at 35,000 shares at 105 to 100, with a further drop to 99 in the next few minutes. Marine Pfd. declined 17⅝ points to 65, Pittsburgh Coal 11½ points to 35, Anaconda 12½ to 70, Central Leather 13½ to 70 and General Motor 10¾ to 100. Bethlehem Steel opened 26 off at 375. In the rail group, Union Pacific fell 7¼ to 134¾. Utah Copper, which was the strongest feature yesterday when it closed at 111¼, sold down to 99. The rallies, after these low prices were established, were almost as violent as the decline had been. Many issues made upturns of five to seven points, with jumps of two to three points between sales. Utah Copper rallied from 99 to 107, Steel Common to 104 and Anaconda four points to 74½. General Motor rose to 107, Marine Pfd. to 70½ and Marine Common from 19⅜ to 22. Studebaker dropped 9 points to 95, from which it rallied to 102. Erie sold off 3½ to 27 and rallied to 28. American Smelting, after falling ten points to 96, rallied to 99½. At the end of the first half hour the tone became steadier with the leading stocks finding a market at better than the low prices at the opening.

There was an absence of excited trading in the late forenoon. Prices generally reacted one to two points from the highest reached on the rally, with Steel Common selling around 102 and Utah Copper around 103. Marine Preferred reacted to 69 and similar recessions after rallies were recorded in nearly all the other important issues. Bethlehem Steel declined to 365½. Money loaning at 2 per cent.

The final tone was irregular. Many leading issues showed a rallying tendency in the late trading.

TESTIMONY TO WEBER'S CHARACTER

After the opening of court this morning, Charles Mullen, was called by the defense to swear to Weber's good character. He said he knew Weber ten years and his reputation always seemed to be good, which he explained by saying Weber lived for three years in a house next to the tobacco factory on North Front street and always paid his rent and did no damage.

Superintendent John H. Harrison of the Kingston water department testified he had known Weber since a year ago last fall; know nothing about him except his business connections and never heard anyone say anything against him.

Hiram Bell of 287 Washington avenue, bookkeeper for Everett & Treadwell, had known Weber six or eight years and said his reputation was good.

Ernest W. Kearney, blacksmith, of 160 Main street, had known Weber 8 or 10 years and said his reputation was good. Cross-examined, he could recall only his father having said Weber's reputation was good.

Didn't See Elmendorf's False Teeth.

Policeman Hess, re-called, said he was at the city hall when he first heard of the trouble and left there on the ambulance between 5 and 5:30 o'clock.

Cross-examined, he said Elmendorf was placed in the tonneau of the automobile, with a sheet wrapped completely around him. His hands and arms were under the sheet, which was not immediately removed when they reached the sanitarium. When Elmendorf vomited, it was in the sheet, and he did not see any false teeth or did not see Elmendorf reach down with his fingers and place the teeth back in his mouth. Brown supported Elmendorf's head on the way down.

Mrs. Herrick Re-called.

Mrs. Lois Herrick, re-called, testified when she went in the Elmendorf kitchen it was a few minutes after five o'clock; she thought she looked at the clock as she usually did It was after five o'clock when she left the kitchen—she did not know exactly the time.

Conversation at Salvation Army Barracks.

Harrison Winchell, who is employed by the Mullen Tobacco Company testified that he attended the Salvation Army services last Sunday night and had a conversation with Mrs. Aurelia Halstead. He was not allowed to testify to this conversation because Mrs. Halstead's attention had not been directed to it while she was on the stand, and he was withdrawn.

Mrs. Halstead was called by the defense and said she met the Winchells at the Salvation Army barracks Sunday night. Winchell asked her how she was getting along and she said she didn't know. She denied that she had said to Winchell that she saw Charley Elmendorf coming through the yard and he had something in his hand but she could not tell what it was, and that after he had gone out of the gate Weber struck him with the gun.

Winchell was then re-called and testified that Mrs. Halstead told him she saw Elmendorf coming out of the yard with something in his hand but she could not tell what it was; that he went out of the gate and Weber struck him after he was outside the gate.

Cross-examined, Winchell said nobody else was within eight feet of himself, his wife and Mrs. Halstead when the latter made that statement; the adjutant was there and a couple of ladies, but he did not know any of their names. He had gone there to hear the preaching and after the conversation he went home. He first mentioned the conversation Wednesday night at the tobacco factory, in the presence of Charles J. Mullen, Margaret Mullen, Jake Sauter and Will Harris. Jake Sauter told Mr. Brooks about it. Winchell was a witness in the Darwin Hinkley case.

Mrs. Ethel L. Winchell, wife of Harrison Winchell, testified to the same statement, amplifying it by saying Mrs. Halstead had said that when she saw Weber with a gun, she was so frightened she did not think about herself but stepped in front of Mrs. Elmendorf and got shot herself.

Before her marriage Mrs. Winchell was a Terwilliger, living two miles outside of Whiteport. Her husband did not ask any other questions.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Winchell's testimony J. I. Waterman was called by the defendant but he was not put on the stand at the time but was held to be used in rebuttal.

With the testimony of Mrs. Winchell the defendant rested and District Attorney Traver offered the minutes of the grand jury in regard to Mrs. Weber's testimony in evidence. The part of the testimony given before the grand jury by Mrs. Weber in regard to what happened on the night of August 9, when she heard the gun shot, was received.

In her testimony before the grand jury, Mrs. Weber testified that she came out of the cellar and while in the house heard the gun go off. She then ran out doors and saw the two men fighting in the road.

When on the witess stand on Wednesday she testified that she saw two men fighting when she came out of the house and that was before the gun had been fired. After she returned to the house the gun was fired.

Brooks Offers Map.

Mr. Brooks asked to re-open the case in order that he might offer a map in evidence. He explained that he had hoped to introduce it in rebuttal but the District Attorney had disappointed him and he had no chance to do so and the case was re-opened and John F. Hallinan was called and stated certain distances on the map. The distances between the houses being explained and the location of the different houses marked.

On cross examination Mr. Hallinan said that there were about ten trees in the rear of the Weber house and all of them were small with the exception of one large cherry tree. He also said that he had noticed dead vines on the fence between the two properties on Saturday when he was there making the map. Whether they interferred with the vision of some of the witnesses was the point which the testimony answered.

At 11:15 the case was closed and an adjournment taken until 2 o'clock this afternoon when both sides summed up. Both sides will finish their summing up before court adjourns this evening.

WILSON'S ACTION IS KEPT SECRET

Probably He Has Asked for an Interpretation From Berlin of Certain Parts of the German Note.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 1.—President Wilson already has taken action in the new crisis precipitated by the German submarine ultimatum. The nature of this is a carefully guarded secret. It is suggested, however, in official quarters, that inquiry has been directed to Ambassador Gerard as to whether the German note implies a "blockade of the Entente territory" or the ruthless use of her submarines against all shipping. There was, however, no possibility of confirmation of this as all inquiries at both the White House and the state department were returned unanswered.

The only word permitted came from administration sources in congress and was as follows:

"It would be improper to say that nothing has yet been done in the matter."

No explanation of this cryptic statement was forthcoming. It was learned during the morning that Secretary Lansing and President Wilson had a secret conference last night which lasted for one hour and a half. The entire German note was gone over carefully and a plan or definite acting was considered.

Secretary Lansing unexpectedly left his office at the state department just before noon and went directly to the White House. Under his arm he carried a mass of papers.

Mr. Lansing left the White House at 1 p. m.

"Can say nothing now," he said.

SHERIFF CAPTURES UNION CENTER GUN

A telephone message from Union Center to the sheriff's office Wednesday night took Sheriff Shultis and Jailer Jocelyn to that place to investigate a report that Chauncey Terpening had locked his wife in one of the rooms of their house and had a shot gun with which neighbors feared he might shoot somebody.

Terpening and his wife had been "jangling" most of the day. Terpening and his four children denied that he had locked Mrs. Terpening in any room or threatened to shoot her. They said she had gone to the upper floor and closed the trap door so that the lower part of the house would get warm and the heat would not go upstairs. While she was upstairs, which is not heated, she had done some shouting, but nobody attempted to keep her there, they said. Mrs. Terpening said she had been compelled to stay upstairs but was not specific.

Sheriff Shultis advised the family to stop jangling and brought the shot gun to the court house for safe keeping.

Friday is Candlemas Day.

Friday will be Candlemas day. The date occupies a place in popular lore from the fact that upon it hinges the tale of the groundhog as a weather prophet. The old wives' story is that the groundhog comes forth from his burrow on Candlemas day; if he can see his shadow he goes back to sleep for 40 days more confident that spring will be tardy On the other hand, if the sun does not shine, he goes back to come forth in an early spring.

Sergeant Murray Retires.

After twenty-five years' active service in the local police department, Sergeant T. J. Murray retired from active duty Wednesday evening when he turned over his "tools of the trade" to Chief Wood. The sergeant has not been enjoying the best of health for the past year, which led to him handing in his resignation from the force. He will be greatly missed from the department as he was one of the most capable officers Kingston ever had.

Coffee does disagree with many. And in these days of accurate scientific knowledge there's no virtue in appearing astonished when this truth is faced.

Caffeine (the drug in coffee, and in tea also) leaves the system in an overworked and debilitated state, and is responsible for various serious ills and discomforts.

YOUNG MR. FEB. IS GREETED BY RAIN

While Thunder and Lightning Storm Play a Farewell to Old Mr. January, Who Departed From Kingston at Stroke of Twelve.

To the accompaniment of a thunder and lightning storm old Mr. January packed his grip—but left a few cases behind—and departed from Kingston at the stroke of twelve last night, and will not return until 1918. While heaven's orchestra played a smashing farewell to Mr. January, young Mr. February came in accompanied by the gentle tap, tap, tap of falling rain and this morning when residents awoke they found the sidewalks and roads flooded, and walking extremely risky on account of the ice which had been uncovered by the melting snow.

Old Man January who has left our busy midst has left a record behind him. During the month but twenty-one arrests were made by the police, the lowest number in five years. But while few felt the grip of the law hundreds of local residents felt the grip of Mr. LaGrippe and the disease raged throughout all sections of the city, and there are still a number of cases left about town. The past month was also remarkable for the fact that there was but little, if any, zero weather. What this month will bring forth time alone will tell.

called and said she had heard a gun fired and had seen Mrs. Weber come down toward her and saw something which she could not hear. Then after standing and tearing her hair and waving her hands for a minute she went back toward her house.

Gordon Fitzgerald, 12 years old, testified to about the same facts as his mother.

Weber Takes the Stand.

When Weber took the stand in his own behalf he stated that in August last he was employed by Edward Coffey, the plumber. He had never had any trouble with the Elmendorfs until the day of the occurrence but he had been told of trouble with the people who lived at the Elmendorf house.

Mrs. Weber Complained of Trouble.

On a number of occasions his wife had told him of having trouble with the family but as he was at work he never saw any of the happenings.

At one time the Elmendorfs had a dog which they tied to a wire and which they also tied to one of his outbuildings and this dog had at times come into his yard through a hole in the fence.

Weber Met With Accident.

For a time Mr. Weber worked for the Kingston city water works and during his work for the city he was in a cavein on Hurley avenue and his hips were injured and at the present time he still suffers from the injuries. At that time he was laid up for several weeks at home.

Weber Had First Trouble.

The happenings which led up to the trouble on August 9, when the shooting took place, were told in detail by Mr. Weber upon his direct examination.

"I went to work on August 8, but was not feeling well and I laid off about 9 or 10 o'clock and went home."

"What did you do after that?" said Mr. Brooks.

"I went bullfrogging with the children but we did not get any that day."

After they came home Weber told of sending the little girl for butter and of her complaint that the Elmendorf and Halstead children were bothering her. When she went down the road the second time he watched and when she came back he went out to meet her.

"When I got down to the Elmendorf house I became tangled up in the fish lines. I reached down and picked them up. They were tied to wagon wheels on the side of the street and the other end was upon the Elmendorf stoop and Mrs. Elmendorf was standing on the end of the line, and when I pulled on the line she nearly tripped up."

Children Threw Dirt at Weber.

Mr. Weber said the children had also thrown dirt at him when he passed.

At this time Weber said that when he became tangled up in the fish hooks and lines his pants were torn and his leg injured.

"Have you still marks on your leg?" said Mr. Brooks.

"I have," said Weber.

"Show them to the jury."

Weber rolled up his trousers and showed the marks still on his leg where he was torn by the hooks on August 8.

Continuing his story Weber said he had gone to the city hall in the evening and asked for a warrant but Sergeant Murray said he could not issue a warrant and that if he came back in the morning and told his troubles to the recorder he could issue a warrant.

The next morning he went before the recorder and asked for a warrant for the Elmendorf boy, Teddy Halstead and Mrs. Elmendorf.

"He did not pay any attention to me and finally said he was tired of mussing with me."

"I said this did not help me any any but he would not give me any warrant and I said: 'Does this mean that I have got to take my own part?' and he said: 'You can suit yourself.'"

Weber said he had heard firearms discharged by the Elmendorfs at different times and also saw George Elmendorf with a rifle.

"Did you have a few drinks on August 8?" said Brooks.

"I did. After leaving the hall I stopped at Luke Costello's on Broadway and had one beer. I walked up and stopped at Joe Bennett's and had another beer and then started home."

Elmendorfs Taunted Him.

"While passing the Elmendorf house the people there who were seated on the porch said: 'You went down to the city hall for a warrant but you did not get one, did you?'"

Children Threw Stones.

Weber Complained to Charley.

On August 8, when he was on his way to the city hall in the evening he met Charley Elmendorf on the corner of Washington avenue and North Front street and told him his family was raising "ructions" and asked Charley to do something about it.

"I told him of the fish line and showed him the line and he said he would put me somewhere where the lines would not bother me."

Told Weber to See Lawyer.

The following day Weber told his wife that he could not get a warrant and she advised him to come up and see Mrs Brinnier and get legal advice and see if they could not get a warrant. He also said he had been home that day, August 9, for dinner but his wife testified that he did not come home that day until about 4 o'clock.

He went that afternoon to Joe Avery's and borrowed the shells for the gun and stoppel at Bennett's, Roe's and Hull's and had a few more drinks and then he went home.

Weber Again Attacked.

"As I passed the Elmendorf house, they were on deck waiting for me and they jeered and hissed and followed it up with stones."

Weber did not say anything at the time but went home and Mrs. Weber began to get supper.

Weber Took the Gun Along.

"While my wife was in the cellar I suggested to myself that I would go and tell them (the Elmendorfs) to leave me alone. I took the gun along."

Saw Elmendorf With Stone.

"Before I got there I saw Elmendorf Lola coming out and Elmendorf had a stone. He met me at the corner and we had a wrangle and he threw the stone at me. I brought the gun down on his head."

The witness then described the fight which followed. He said they fell down, Elmendorf on top, but Weber rolled him off and then they got on their feet again and fought over to the other side of the road and he again hit Elmendorf who fell. He was not sure if Elmendorf's head hit the stone curb when he fell or not. Then Mrs. Herrick came out and hit him with a stone and he chased her.

Found Charley Unconscious.

"I then went back and picked up Elmendorf and sat him up but he fell over and I saw he was unconscious and let him down again."

He then started down the well path and did wave his hands and shout but he was waving good bye to his wife and saying good bye to the folks. He thought he may have cursed at the Buntens who were on their porch. He then started down toward the court house to give himself up when he met Officer Kuehn.

Did Weber Assault Other People?

Weber told District Attorney upon cross examination that he lived in Eddyville and he did not know if his name was Weber or Weiber as his folks had died when he was young and he had used both names since.

At one time he worked on the Washington avenue sewer he said and then Mr. Traver attempted to show several assaults which it is alleged Weber had committed.

Weber said he had not assaulted an Italian in 1911 with an axe handle on North Front street, nor an Italian in the Coykendall quarry, but admitted he had struck a man named William Ellsworth after he had struck Weber. An attempt to show some illegal business in Eddyville some time ago was not allowed by the court.

Weber Gets Confused.

Weber then said he had had dinner at home on August 9, but his wife said he did not. He also said Judge Lang had not told him the matter was to trivial to issue a warrant for and said if Judge Lang had so said it was untrue.

He said he had borrowed the gun 5 or 6 weeks before to go frog hunting with.

"Why did you borrow shells if you had lots at home?" said Mr. Traver.

"To have more," was the answer.

He said he had asked for eight shells but Avery could only spare 4.

When asked if he had told Sam Hull about the fish line episode he was unable to tell and repeated questions answered on direct examination he was unable to answer on cross examination. He said he had forgotten where he stopped or who he saw on the morning of the 9th and could not remember where he stopped for drinks.

"How many times did you strike Elmendorf?"

"I struck him once with the gun when it went off."

When he knocked Elmendorf down he had struck him with his fist in the face, and after he knocked him down he said he did not strike him again.

"Did not your wife say you struck him after he was down?" said Mr. Traver.

Maybe I did strike him," admitted Weber.

He said if Elmendorf had 10 cuts or bruises on his head he did not know how he got them and he did not think he had sworn at the Buntens or said he would finish them if he had another charge. He did not say he had "finished the damn niggers."

Did Not Hit Him With Stone.

He said he had not jounced Elmendorf's head up and down on the stone nor had he hit him with a stone.

At this time he recalled that when he hit Elmendorf over the head with the gun they did not fall down but that Elmendorf hit him then.

Came to Stop the Trouble.

"What were you coming down the road with the gun for?"

"To tell them to stop bothering me."

"You didn't have to carry a gun to tell them that, did you?"

"To my suggestion it would be so," was the answer of the witness.

Weber could not remember hitting Elmendorf on the back of the head and he did not remember telling Mrs. Coffey that he had finished the Elmendorf's and was going to jail for it.

After going a short distance Weber met Officer Kuehn and was stopped and asked where he was going to which he replied that he was going to the court house to give himself up.

"Did you tell Officer Kuehn that 'you have got the goods on me?'" asked Mr. Traver.

"No, I said, 'I have got the goods with me,' meaning that I had the gun with me."

Pessmore Wants More Noise.

At this point Juror No. One asked for the witness to speak louder.

"Mr. District Attorney we can't hear him talk through his hand, can't the witness talk louder, we want to hear him," said Juror Pessmore.

Weber, who has just had several teeth extracted, talked in so low a tone that at times Judge Jenkins could not hear him and the stenographer was compelled to ask him to repeat answers. Repeated warnings to talk louder only gave temporary relief and much of the testimony was not heard by the counsel for the defence. Weber leaned upon one arm of the chair with his hand to his mouth and it was of this that Mr. Pessmore complained.

Could Not Remember Distinctly.

Upon re-direct examination Weber said he did not have a distinct recollection of just what did happen at the time of the shooting and assault.

Komeskie Testifies.

Virgil Komeskie who lives across from Elmendorf's house said he had sold the property to the Elmendorf's and had seen Weber on August 8 pick up the fish lines and take them home. He did not see any of the trouble on the ninth because he was working. He sometimes goes to work at 4 or 5 o'clock and works until late in the afternoon, sometimes until 6, 7 or even 8 o'clock.

Court then adjourned until this morning at 10 o'clock.

IT WAS YOUNG FOLKS' NIGHT

At Tabernacle—Spirited Services—High School Gives School Yell and Cheers Evangelist—1,267 Have Hit Trail—Collection for Industrial Home.

Giving the school yell and winding up with a cheer for Evangelist L. K. Peacock, the large delegation of high school students who attended the services Wednesday evening at the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle added zip and zest to a spirited service. There were also large delegations present from the young people's societies and organizations, and from the Industrial Home, and it was a real young folks' night with the evangelist preaching the sermon on "The White Life" especially for them. The collection, which amounted to nearly $58, was turned over to the Industrial Home. While the collection was being taken up the high school delegation sang the school song with much spirit and vim.

Colored Churches Tonight.

This evening the colored churches of the city will attend service in a body and seats will be reserved for them in the center of the tabernacle. There will be special singing and the evangelist will speak. Everyone is welcome at the meeting.

A Clean Life.

The evangelist took his text from 119th Psalm the 9th verse: "Wherewith shall a young man cleanse his way?" He said that this was a most important question for the young folks to consider, and that it was concisely answered by the next verse of the Psalm which says: "By taking heed thereto according to Thy word."

Every right thinking person in the world has a desire to do right. Every one should make this a personal question: "How can I lead a good clean life? How can I be a blessing to the world?"

Cannot Erase Scars.

Everyone has sinned and transgressed God's law. You may sin, and God may forgive you, but the scars will remain. Every one wants to make a success in life but we need some higher power to guide us. We need some one to steer us safe through the shoals of sin, and that one is Christ, the great pilot.

Look Back Again.

As the older folks look back over their past life and think of the people they associated with when a child and when they grew older all along the shores of life they will see ruined characters and damned souls of those who tried to guide their lives without the aid of God.

Why They Lost Out.

The evangelist told briefly the story of two young men who attended college when he did. Both were famous athletes and both were exceptionally bright in their studies, but they had faults; they drank a little, used profanity, smoked cigarettes and led an impure life. Today they are both down and out. They lost out because they thought they knew how to guide their own lives and did not need God.

Watch First False Step.

In closing he urged the young folks not to take the first false step, as it was so easy to trod the way of sin after the first step had been taken. He advised them to build themselves up physically and mentally and spiritually.

75 Hit Trail.

At the close of the sermon the evangelist extended an invitation to those present to consecrate themselves to God by coming forward, and seventy-five men and women, young and old, accepted the invitation and hit the trail. A large number of the high school delegation came forward.

Trail Hitters Number 1,267.

This makes the total number of trail hitters so far during the campaign 1,267 men and women, boys and girls, who have publicly expressed a determination to consecrate themselves to God.

Heavy Storm Broke Out.

That the big tabernacle is water tight was plainly shown Wednesday evening while the services were in progress and the rain beat like bullets on the roof of the building, but the roof did not leak.

Had Picture Taken.

Bible Class Friday.

Friday afternoon Mr. Warth will have charge of a Bible class at the tabernacle and all interested in the study of the Bible are urged to attend.

Services Arranged.

Friday evening the evangelist will speak on Heaven and Saturday evening on Hell. There will be three services for every person on Sunday.

Next week will be Denominational Night at the tabernacle. Tuesday will be Baptist night, Wednesday will be Presbyterian night, Thursday will be Methodist night and Friday will be Reformed night.

BONTICOU.

Bonticou, Jan. 31.—A number of young people spent a most enjoyable evening last Wednesday at the home of Jesse Van Kleeck to whom they gave a surprise party.

Eugene Geary has two new iron-gray colts.

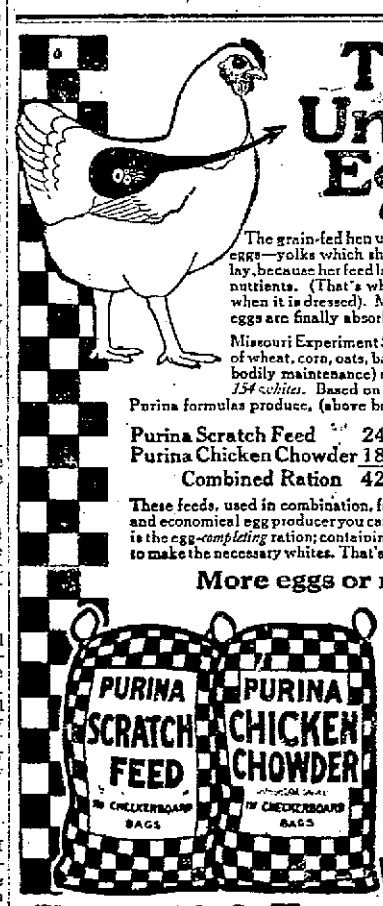
There were services at the Dashville Reformed Church on Sunday. There were several new faces in the congregation. We hope that they may soon be as familiar as the rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Kleeck have been spending a few weeks at the home of their daughter in Jersey City.

Two of the teamsters on Woodcrest have been ill the past week, but they are recovered.

It is rumored that there is a new automobile stage to go from Kingston to Rosendale and thence to New Paltz. This will be a convenience much looked for by the people of this place.

Mrs. Wolken and her family and Mrs. Osmers of Tillson were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Freer on Sunday.



The Unlaid Eggs

The grain-fed hen usually carries a number of unlaid eggs—yolks which she cannot complete into eggs and lay, because her feed lacks the necessary white-forming nutrients. (That's why egg-yolks are found in a hen, when it is dressed). Many of these yolks of unfinished eggs are finally absorbed back into the hen's system.

Missouri Experiment Station tests showed that 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats, barley and kaffir corn make (above bodily maintenance) an average of 224 yolks and only 154 whites. Based on data from the same experiments, Purina formulas produce, (above bodily maintenance) as follows:—

Purina Scratch Feed	247.49 yolks	142.11 whites
Purina Chicken Chowder	182.05 "	282.55 "
Combined Ration	429.54 yolks	424.66 whites

These feeds, used in combination, form the most perfectly balanced and economical egg producer you can buy. Purina Chicken Chowder is the egg-completing ration; containing exactly the right feed elements to make the necessary whites. That's why we can positively guarantee

More eggs or money back

on Purina Chicken Chowder if fed with Purina Scratch Feed as directed. You take no risk. Write for further information and for our

TRAINED FOR GREAT SPEED.

These Meharl, as They Are Called, Can Cover a Hundred Miles a Day Without Undue Fatigue, and They Are Never Worked as Beasts of Burden

There are almost as many varieties of camels as horses' says a bulletin of the National Geographic society The Arab name for camel is djemel Those of Tunisia Tripolitania and Algeria have one hump and are really dromedaries Certain breeds of camel can withstand the great heat of the Sahara and others that of the zero weather of Tibet and China

It is amazing to see the rapidity with which a herd of 500 camels will eat to the ground a large pasturage of prickly pear from eight to ten feet high Leaves stems prickles and all disappear like magic

In many parts of Africa the natives keep all their date stones and give them to exhausted camels weary from their long Sahara march The camel rejects at first and the late stones moistened in a little water are pushed forcibly by the handful down the camel's throat after it has been made to kneel and then securely fastened In two or three days the camel learns to eat them of its own accord The natives say that these date stones make the hump of the camel strong and stiff

"The camel in its long march across the Sahara frequently finds very little to eat and lives on the fat of its own hump When this continues during a long time the hump becomes flabby and almost disappears

The usual weight of the burdens carried by a camel varies from 500 to 600 pounds for journeys from town to town or on the border of the desert Going across the desert the burden is less When a camel is fully laden it keeps up a continual snarling and should it be overburdened it refuses to arise Most meals are vicious and their bite is very dangerous Hardly a week passes at the large native market in Tunis but some unfortunate camel driver dies of blood poisoning in consequence of the camel's bite The grinding motion of a camel's jaws crushes to pulp whatever it bites so that the arm or leg has to be amputated and blood poisoning usually sets in before the patient can reach the hospital

In the interior of north Africa is a superb race of camels known as the mehara (plural meharl) or dromedaries The mehara are employed to the greatest possible advantage in the quick transportation of the Koran and other articles of merchandise from one part of Africa to another Journeys of three months' duration are frequently undertaken by these camels

When a baby mehari is born it is suckled by its mother at the usual feeding times and is taught to kneel when it is weaned at two years old with the mother's milk It is then broken in to the saddle and known from then on as a meharl

When it is two years old the mehari's training begins A halter is placed around the head and the rider sits on the forward part of the animal's back just behind the hump and the animal is taught by gesture and the voice alone After the animal can kneel it should be made to stay there until the rider is ready to mount Finally it must be taught what is required but this is only to be accomplished when it will stand in one place without moving for hours on end

To make the camel a fast runner the rider whips it on both sides with a blunt stick while the animal is very fond of its own milk In addition to being strong and swift the mehari is very sure footed A young mehari will begin to gallop The whipping keeps up and the animal tries to outrun its tormentor The long legs seem to fly with a motion like that of a rocking horse and almost as fast It will keep constantly at a gallop no matter what path it has to make up

When the rider jumps off or should he happen to fall a well trained mehari will stand still and will not run away while should the animal happen to be injured the faithful beast will never leave him

A mehari is never used as a beast of burden All it ever carries is a saddle and its rider This Moorish saddle is of wood covered with a high pommel and cross piece in front and two saddle bags and a rider The rider is buckled into the saddle by two belts His feet are crossed in front of the saddle at the base of the pommel His slippers are usually slung across the pommel and the mehari is guided by the wrigglings of the rider's toes

The mehari is used entirely by the Arabs when on the warpath or raiding A mehari on the warpath can raise three men Two ride it and the third takes half of its tail and is pulled along The latter changes places with the rider at intervals When a war party has lost so many camels that there remains but one camel for every three men it always retreats

When going at full speed a mehari has a most remarkable single foot or pacing step the motion of which is not at all disagreeable and it can cover quite easily 100 miles in a day without undue fatigue"

Incognito and Incognita

By ELINOR MARSH

'Is Miss Watriss at home' asked a middle aged man of a maid who answered his call at the front door of a handsome country residence

'I'll see, sir'

The gentleman dropped a card on the salver the maid held to him, bearing the name of Alonzo Tewkesbury and she took it upstairs, while the gentleman stepped into a reception room

Mr Tewkesbury had complained to his friend Mrs Sansom that he had neglected to marry during the youthful mating period and had before him the prospect of living all his life without a companion or a home Mrs Sansom had replied that she had a woman friend who had a similar prospect before her

You are both well off she said, in this world's goods and would make a good match

This led to an arrangement made by Mrs Sansom with a view to bringing the parties together and Mr Tewkesbury was making his first call on Miss Watriss

Presently a woman plainly but neatly dressed came down with the card in her hand and said

Mr Tewkesbury, I am Miss Watriss housekeeper Mrs Hawkins Miss Watriss has been unavoidably called away She has commissioned me to say to you that she may return any time during the day and if you will await her coming she will be glad to see you I am directed to do what I can to enable you to fill in the time We have a fine library and I can furnish you with the late magazines

Hum' said Mr Tewkesbury thoughtfully Are you in Miss Watriss confidence

Somewhat

Are you aware of the object of this call?

I am

Then I know of no better way to pass the time than for you to tell me something about Miss Watriss

Miss Watriss is simply a woman like any other woman She is neither very good nor very bad She has a good income but finds it difficult to live within it

Then you think she desires to add to it

Most assuredly Miss Watriss is practical She knows that much more can be done with a million of two incomes than with one The unity of the second part would share in this advantage

She is right in that This romance of marrying without giving due consideration to such matters pertains to the young and foolish

It is well that you look at it in this light The proposed marriage is I take it on the whole one of mutual convenience which is quite consistent with common sense

That's it There is too much romance and too little sense in American marriages Besides a man of forty and a woman—you say thirty-five—

in their teens

Are there any other questions you would like to ask?

You are very kind to furnish me with this information

Not at all Mrs Watriss told me before she left to answer truthfully any questions you might ask and to tell you especially that which she would not like to say herself that one of the considerations in making the proposed match would be a matter of money Her income is six thousand a year

That will be satisfactory to me You may say to Miss Watriss for me that my income from my business or other sources varies from five to fifteen thousand a business income being generally always uncertain

Don't you think that it would be a good idea for you to see Miss Watriss without her knowing that you are Mr Tewkesbury?

A splendid idea But how could it be arranged

Men are very stupid about such things I have only to tell some trifling lie Knows Miss Watriss Introduce you as Mr Jones

Good Thanks for the suggestion Perhaps I'd better not wait for Miss Watriss to return I'll have a look at her as you suggest You won't give me away in this matter will you?

Oh no' I think you are entitled to see the lady you think of proposing to among before proceeding in the matter

And Miss Watriss should see me incog too shouldn't she

Oh Miss Watriss is perfectly able to form and carry out her own plan I wouldn't think of suggesting anything to her

Well I'll bid you good morning Much obliged for the idea you have given me

Mr Tewkesbury took his leave and straightway went to Mrs Sansom

Do you think you could bring Miss Watriss here to meet me as Mr Jones without her suspecting that I'm Sam Tewkesbury"

Of course I can

Then please do so

A few days later Mr Tewkesbury received a telephone message from Mrs Sansom that Miss Watriss was with her and for him to come over He went and found Miss Watriss housekeeper

"Sam" he exclaimed

I don't need to see you incognita as I have already seen you

The match was made

Getting Even

"I don't know as it does any perticular good but it 'pears to sorter satisfy my children" said Mr Gap Johnson of Pumpkin Ridge Ark Every time the preacher gets off what they think is too long a sermon my kids whip the preacher's kids"

POULTRY FACTS

Important Problem Is to Ascertain How Many Eggs Each Hen Lays—Hens Make Best Mothers.

The time has come when more attention must be given to high production in the farm flock It is not enough that the poultry fanciers breed up their layers and attempt to increase the strain Farmers should breed up their own flocks

We should know what the hens produce and let their stay on the farm depend upon what they pay This is the only business way to look at poultry raising

Trap nesting is the fancier's way It is a good way but other ways may be devised to keep records of the hens The important problem is to find out how many eggs each hen lays and when she lays them.

Summer layers are not near as important as early spring and winter layers for winter eggs always bring better prices so do early spring eggs

It follows from this that a hen that lays in winter though she produces fewer eggs may be more profitable than a summer layer

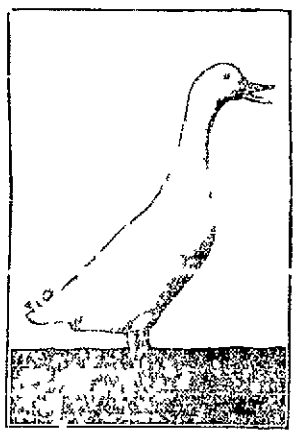
But authorities tell us not to keep hens till they are very old They say the second season is generally the best for a laying hen But there is need of more records on this subject Anyway hens make better mothers when old than when pullets

RUNNER DUCKS ARE FAVORED

Especially Adapted to Poultryman Who Wishes to Produce Eggs and Raise Some Meat.

The man who desires a dual purpose fowl will find the Runner duck suitable This duck is especially adapted to the poultryman who wishes to produce eggs and to raise some meat at the same time

They are perhaps not so good for meat as some of the other breeds but



Runner Duck

they make good roasters fryers and broilers when they have been properly fed

They are better layers than the average hen From 200 to 250 eggs is not an uncommon yearly average for them under good care

PROFITABLE TO RAISE GAME

Money Can Be Made With Pheasants, Buffalo and Deer—Feed Cost Is Not Very Large

It costs no more to raise pheasants than chickens and pheasants sell at from $5 to $50 a pair according to the variety the Chinese ring neck sells at about $7 50 a pair

It costs no more to raise a buffalo than a cow while the former sells at about the price of ten cows the cost of raising a deer is about the same as sheep while the deer finds a ready market at from $10 to $50

CULLS SHOULD BE FATTENED

When Undesirable Fowls Reach Proper Size They Should Be Placed In Pen and Fed Corn

As soon as the culls have reached a proper size they should be fattened Place them in a pen to themselves and feed them food that contains a large per cent of carbohydrates such as corn or its milling products During the process of fattening do not give them any green food at all

GIVING CHALK FOR DIARRHEA

Boiled With Rice It Will Cure and Pass Off Naturally—No Harm In Excessive Dose.

At the time of an outbreak of diarrhea there often is a cry of cholera It is a false cry but the trouble needs treatment

Boil some rice, and mix it with plenty of powdered chalk—an excess of this will do no harm as it will effect a cure and pass off naturally

Cover for Water Bottle.

A hot water bag often proves to be the friend in need and if possible one should provide a suitable dress for it. One seen recently was made of white flannel embroidered with a simple wreath in pink and green

BILLY EVANS SOLVES BASEBALL PROBLEMS

(Written Especially for This Paper by the Famous American League Umpire)

Winning a game after it looks like a cinch that the game is over is a trifle out of the ordinary, yet it happened in one of the minor leagues several years ago The play so deceived the crowd that a goodly portion of them rushed on the field, and for ten or fifteen minutes there was considerable confusion, with the umpire as the center of most of the storm

The game was played between great rivals, the cities represented by the two teams being about 20 miles apart. It was a holiday contest and the clubs, because of the closeness of the two cities, played the morning game in one town and the afternoon contest in the other city Several hundred visiting fans attended the morning game, and when it seemed as though the game was over, they began to celebrate but all too soon

In the last half of the ninth inning, the home team filled the bases after two were out The visitors held a one run lead so that a safe hit would at least tie if not win the game It was up to the batter He took a healthy wallop at the second ball pitched and sent up a pop fly which the first baseman caught While the ball was still in the air it was evident that much argument was taking place at the plate The batter and catcher were saying things to each other while the umpire was making a lot of frantic motions As the ball was caught all the visiting delegation as well as many of the home rooters surged on the field

After much trouble and confusion the police managed to clear the field Instead of the game being over the score had been tied the bases were still filled and another good hitter up He singled driving in the winning run after the game had apparently been decided. Only one thing could have happened What was it?

Answer to Problem

Fearing that the man on third might attempt to steal home he being noted for such stunts the backstop of the visiting team was catching very close to the batter The batter struck rather late at the ball which he popped up to the first baseman for what appeared the third out Unfortunately the catcher tipped the bat of the batsman as he was about to swing interfering with his efforts The umpire could do only one thing grant the batter first base and allow all the other runners to be advanced as they were forced to do so to make room for the batter This sent the run across the plate that tied the score while the single by the next batter won the game that seemed lost It is needless to add that the umpire had a very strenuous afternoon of it for he had to shift with the teams to the other city

AMERICANS FINE AS GOLFERS

John M Ward Expert Driver and Niblick Believes United States Will Produce Star

That the United States soon will produce the greatest golfers in the world is the opinion of John M Ward an expert with the driver and niblick

John M Ward

His prediction is based on the vastly improved form of American players which to Ward was the feature of the 1916 golf season It this improvement in playing form continues says the veteran American golfers as a class should at least be the equal if not the superiors of the English and Scotch players

What surprised me most said Ward was the improved playing style of the majority of golfers It was only a short time ago that about one golfer in ten played in correct form This season I would say that seven out of ten knew the proper way to play their clubs Those showing the best form were the young fellows

This means that most of the present stars who helped to make the sport so popular will be compelled to stand aside With the proper instruction of our young players I should say that within ten years our golfers will be the best in the world

COULDN'T KID JOE

What'll you give me Joe if I don't crack out a hit? said Jack Graney when he came to bat in the ninth inning of Bush's recent no hit game O'Neil and Coleman the latter batting for Coumbe had both struck out, each taken a health but fruitless swing at the third strike. Graney alone remained between Bush and fame

You know this means a lot to you Joe continued Jack in his bantering way and you ought to slip me a nice piece of change if I help you out What do you say"

Bush simply grinned set himself to his task in a more determined manner than ever before and forced Graney to pop to Walmsley Jack was the first to congratulate Joe.

AMERICANS ASK LONGER TENNIS SEASON

Only Trifle Over Three Months of Competition Out of Doors—Players Want More Time

Lawn tennis has gradually attracted such an army of devotees that there has followed the real desires on the part of the players to prolong the season out of doors

So far as the records of several years show for anything there is at best only a trifle more than three months of competition on turf and clay surfaces before the changeable weather causes the wielders of the racquet to seek the enjoyment of the indoor game on the board courts of the armories This immediately limits the amount of playing time and the number of players It has not been the most satisfactory arrangement for those ardently devoted to the sport so that gradually there has been some experimenting as to ways and means by which the outdoor season might be lengthened so as to offer fair sport for the followers of the courts

It has been realized for some time that earth courts even when in perfect condition do not solve the problem The frost and the rains of the autumn soon cause the clay surfaces to be unsatisfactory What the frost and rain leave undone the brisk autumnal breezes accomplish especially when the playing surfaces have been liberally sanded The result has been to turn the attention of some of the players to court playing surfaces of boards and of concrete

Veteran Catcher Declares He Is Through Merrymaking and Gets Contract With Mathewson

Wouldn't it look natural to see Larry McLean catching for the Reds?

During the recent National league meeting at New York Larry sought out Christy Mathewson He made a good straight talk declared that he had even so late in baseball life realized that his days of merrymaking were all over and asked a trial

Larry was ably assisted by John McGraw, who gave him a strong boost and full forgiveness for the big row that ended Larry's connection with the Giants and organized ball two years ago Mathewson gave his vote for taking Larry into the fold and it was settled Larry so the story goes gets his new contract from the Reds January 1, goes into gymnasium training right away and reports at Shreveport, March 1 with the rest of the boys.

Sleepy Time Story About a Very Interesting King.

WHAT HAPPENED IN THE WOOD

Thrilling and Unique Experience of a Little Boy Who Had Sharp Eyes. How a Kindly Act Was Rewarded. Summer Sports In Winter Time.

Well, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell a story about

BEES AND FAIRIES.

Once upon a time there was a little old lady who lived with her grandchild in a house not very far from the magic woods.

People said the magic woods were full of elves and fairies, and they were afraid to go there Little Hans loved the woods, though Whenever his grandmother would allow him he went wandering away in the forest

Perhaps, grannie, I may some day meet with the kind fairy folk, and if I do I will not let them go until they tell me how I can be a useful little boy," he said

You are a useful little boy, dearie," his grandmother would answer.

But I wish I could earn some money to make you more comfortable," he said When I m a great big man I shall work so hard that you can wear a silk dress every day in the week"

One day when Hans was out in the forest he noticed a huge spider s web and right in the middle of it was a poor bee buzzing and struggling to get free

Hans was a kind hearted boy, and he was sorry for the insect.

He broke the web so that the bee could fly away It did not go far but perched on the branch of a tree Hans was surprised to hear it speak

Thank you, Hans," it said "I am the king of the bees, and I must reward you for saving me from wicked old Ogre Spider, who would soon have made a meal of me If you will do as I tell you you shall always have delicious honey to eat and sell"

Then the bee told Hans to gather the seed of certain flowers that grew in the magic wood and plant them in his grandmother s garden

The little boy took the seed home and planted them When the magic flowers bloomed they were all yellow and gave off a delicious fragrance Hosts of bees swarmed to the garden and worked busily filling the hives with honey When the queen came by one day in her carriage she stopped to look at the garden and taste of the honey

So delicious was the sweet that she ordered that it should be put up in golden pots for her own special use The queen paid the little old lady so much for this honey that the little boy s wish came true—his grandmother could have afforded a silk gown for every day in the week if she had cared to have one

Jimmy Esmond, who, together with Chase and Mosely, was grabbed by Garry Herrmann for the Cincinnati club from Buffalo, when there was such a scramble for Federal League players, will be with the Cincinnati Reds the coming season with his two fellow stars.

Esmond was with the Reds in 1913 and made a decided hit in Cincinnati, but cast his fortunes with the Federals. He was taken back into the fold of organized ball by Herrmann.

He got a bad setback last year when a siege of sickness prevented him from reporting to the Reds, but he has entirely recovered his health and will be in splendid shape when he joins his team in the south for training.

Moreover, Christy Mathewson will find in Esmond a reliable infielder and an improved batter over his showing when he was with Cincinnati previously. He always had the reputation of being a clean cut fellow on and off the ball field, and an honor to the profession.

HOW

To Make Your Will So It Can't Be Broken

"IN the United States each state has adopted its own statute directing the manner in which wills shall be made, based largely upon the English statute," states a lawyer. "In New York, for example, a will must be in writing, and must be signed by the testator. To this rule that the will must be in writing there is one statute granting an exception to soldiers in actual military service and sailors actually at sea. Wills by such persons may be made orally and are called nuncupative wills. They must be witnessed by at least two witnesses."

This expert went on to say that a will must be signed, literally, at the end of the paper upon which it is written, for if the testator signs anywhere but at the end of the will all that appears after his signature will not be considered a part of the will. "In making a will, therefore, do not use correspondence note paper, writing on the first page, then the third, then back to the second and end there, as is sometimes done in letters."

A case was cited where a will was so written and rejected by one surrogate. The decision was appealed and a higher court ruled that the paper from the beginning [illegible] where the testator signed it, and the witnesses also, was a sufficient will, and that the remarks upon the third page could be disregarded. The lawyer explained the law for the testator signing the will personally or making his mark, and for at least two persons to witness the document, knowing that it is the will of the testator. The testator must sign first and the witnesses acknowledge his signature, and they must affix their addresses on the will. Failure to do this renders them liable to a penalty of $50 for each offense, and witnesses should be people who have addresses more or less permanent and whose handwriting can be easily proved in case of their decease before the testator. It is wise to have more than two witnesses. In case of the death of one, for there will then be less trouble to prove, and the property bequeathed may lie in a state where three witnesses are required.

A NEW MENU.

How Flowers Can Be Used For Food and For Confections.

The food value of flowers is a matter that is just beginning to interest the scientific world, says the Pittsburgh Post. Violets are said to contain considerable nourishment. They formed the basis of a refreshing drink and in other forms figured conspicuously in the feasts of the ancient Persians. The modern confectioner crystallizes them in sugar.

The old Turkish confections made of rose leaves are declared delicious by those who have eaten them. A number of cooks have discovered that a handful of rose petals imparts a flavor of unparalleled delicacy to desserts of many kinds.

For those who do not care for sweets the gayly colored nasturtium offers delights to the palate. It may be used as a filling for sandwiches, mixed judiciously with other materials in salad. Its delicious pungency appeals to the epicure, while physicians say it aids digestion.

A favorite Italian dish consists of fried squash blossoms. When properly prepared this food is both appetizing and nourishing. The yellow blossoms of the common field pumpkin may be cooked in the same way.

HOUSE PLANTS IN WINTER.

How They Should Be Cared For In a Proper Manner.

"Don't fuss with your house plants until you kill them," is the warning given Kansas housewives and other lovers of flowers by M. F. Ahearn, professor of landscape gardening in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"Many amateurs," said Professor Ahearn, "do not realize that plant tissues need to rest as do the human tissues, and when the plant stops growing they begin to dig around the roots and then repot the plant. Plants should not be disturbed in winter.

"In caring for house plants keep the temperature between 60 and 70 degrees in the daytime and 50 to 65 at night. When plants are grown in an abnormally high temperature, with moisture, the growth becomes soft and they are easily injured. A strong draft, even if only 10 or 20 degrees cooler than the surrounding air, will seriously chill the plants."

Why Cats Are Able to See In the Dark.

The human eye can only perceive things which are revealed by light, and it requires a much greater amount of light to use the faculty of sight than is the case with animals of the cat family. These animals have the power of enlarging the eye pupil, thereby permitting the eye to obtain all of the light possible. As there is some light present in even the darkest places, this is a distinct advantage and enables cats "to see in the dark."

Why Popcorn "Pops" and How to Produce Best Results.

Nature puts the "pop" in popcorn by means of starch grains within the corn. Each grain of corn is subdivided into many cells, and when subjected to heat the moisture and starch in these cells explode, which supplies the "pop" so dear to childish hearts. The more heat the better the "pop," turning the grain inside out.

Diedrich Knickerbocker.

It may be that a Dutchman named Knickerbocker did live in the early history of New York, but if he did there are no records extant to prove it. The truth is, the name was created by Washington Irving, who applied it to all residents of New York in his time who happened to be descended from the early Dutch settlers. Irving used this quaint Dutch character in his "Knickerbocker History of New York" to burlesque the early days of the city. The volume purported to have been the work of Diedrich Knickerbocker and gave an amusing and satirical account of the early Dutch settlers. Records of the period tell us that the book bitterly offended their descendants, who never forgave Irving for his fling at them.—New York Times.

Heavy Rollers at St. Helena.

If the sea were to break on the shores of Coney Island in time of calm weather with the same force as it does on the shores of St. Helena sections of South Brooklyn would be [illegible] all likelihood. They have at St. Helena what are known as calenmas, or heavy rollers. These rollers are particularly bad in time of calm weather. They strike the island with such tremendous force that the spray is sent over Goat Pound ridge, which is several feet above sea level. Scientists are of opinion the calemmas are caused by seismic disturbances beneath the ocean.—Exchange.

Too Highly Complimented.

"Doctor, do you have a fixed charge for your operations or do you charge what you think your patients can afford to pay?"

"Well, I wouldn't say that that is always my custom, although sometimes I do make liberal discounts to the poor."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Disease From Towels.

Do not use the towel any one else has used.

There is great danger of infection from using towels in public wash rooms.

The germs of disease remain active in a damp towel for fully twelve hours.

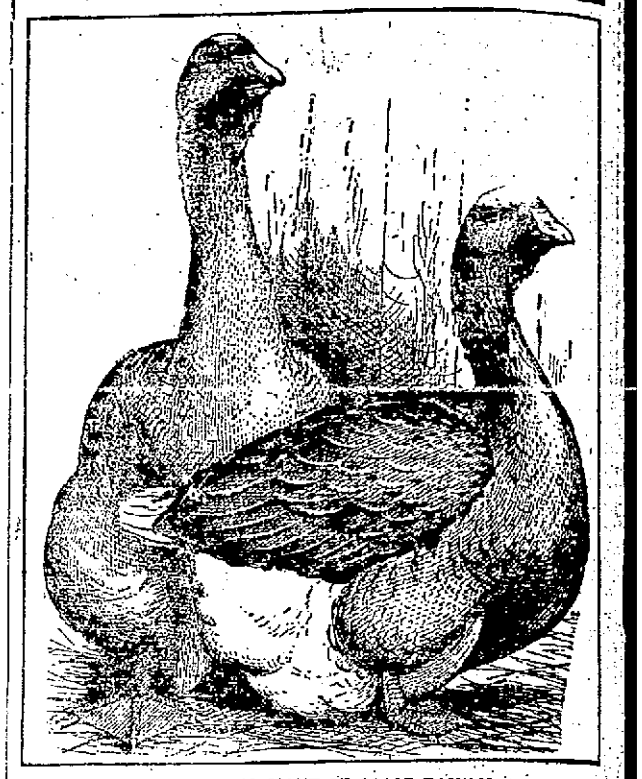
Loathsome skin diseases are spread by using the roller towel in a wash room of a public place.

Grave constitutional diseases are acquired by using a common towel in a store, office or factory.

It is far better to let the hands go undried than to wipe them on a towel which some one else has used.

Have your own towel in the home and have your own towel in the place where you are employed and let no one else use it.

POPULAR AND COMMON BREEDS OF GEESE



TOULOUSE IS GIANT OF GOOSE FAMILY.

The Toulouse is the giant of the goose family. It is a native of France. Its ordinary weight is from 15 to 20 pounds, but it is not uncommon to find specimens weighing from 25 to 30 pounds. This is the typical gray goose, but beneath and behind these are white areas in the plumage.

It is said by those who have had experience with this breed that young geese during the first year lay from 15 to 25 eggs, when older they may lay from 25 to 40.

The Embden is a popular breed in some places. The body of the birds is snowy white, the legs and bills yellow. They have good type and conformation. In size it is the same as standard for the Toulouse, though it is said a smaller number of Embden reach this standard than of Toulouse.

The Embden when well bred, properly fed and prepared makes a carcass that sells well on the market. But it is said that many breeders in this country have not given much attention to fine quality.

There are two varieties of Chinese geese, brown and white. This breed has different characteristics from the others mentioned. The birds stand more erect and have longer and slenderer necks than the others. The Brown Chinese have at the base of the bill a peculiar dark-colored knob. The Brown is considered the most prolific of all the geese. The standard weight for the gander is 15 pounds, geese 12 pounds. The female is said to lay from 40 to 50 eggs, sometimes more. A large per cent of the eggs are generally fertile.

FEEDING WILL DOUBLE EGGS

Average Hen in Missouri Lays Sixty-Three Eggs Annually—Scantily Fed Hen Is Poor Investment.

(By H. L. Kempster, Missouri College of Agriculture.)

According to the United States census, Missouri's 21,000,000 hens lay 111,000,000 dozen eggs annually. If this is true, the average hen lays about 63 eggs a year. This is a poor record. One reason why hens are not more productive is because usually they are half fed. It is false economy to expect them to pick their living from the leavings of other stock. Many farmers admit that they feed their hens nothing during the summer. In so doing, they are saving feed but losing money.

A productive hen requires from 70 to 80 pounds of feed a year. If she gets only 40 to 50 pounds, she will simply satisfy her body requirements. She will not lay eggs. The scantily fed hen is a poor investment. It is only the liberally fed hen that yields the profit.

Farmers should keep dry ground feed, such as a mixture of bran, shorts and cornmeal, in hoppers before the hens at all times. Either sour milk or butter milk should be given as a drink. Crushed limestone or oyster shell should be before the hens all the time, and the hens should go to roost with full crops.

One correspondent wrote that after feeding according to the directions of the poultry department of the University of Missouri his hens laid twice as many eggs. These directions are given in circular 76, entitled "Feeding for Egg Production," which is distributed free.

KILL CHICKENS FOR MARKET

To Prevent Food Remaining in Crop and Intestines Fowls Should Be Starved 24 Hours.

The chickens must be starved 24 hours before killing. This will prevent the food remaining in the crop and intestines, which decomposes and spoils the flavor.

Several hours after the last feed allow the chickens what water they wish to drink. They should then have a complete fast until they are killed.

For market purposes, the birds should be killed by bleeding within the mouth and piercing the brain.

ENCOURAGE HENS TO CACKLE

See That Fowls Are Given Proper Food and Water and They Will Increase Egg Production.

Do the hens cackle? Eggs are worth 40 cents a dozen, or 3 1-3 cents a cackle.

You had plenty of cackles when the hens could catch bugs and worms (meat) and had green grass to eat and plenty of water.

See that they get the egg-producing feeds and they will cackle.

SELECT HENS WITH RECORDS

Mate Them With Cockerels of Good Laying Strains and Hatch From Them—Progress Sires.

The hen as we have her today has been developed very rapidly as an egg producer. The jungle fowl from which our laying hens have been developed probably laid about two dozen eggs a year at most. Perhaps many only raised one brood. Hens of anything like good type and breeding today may average 140 eggs a year. There are, of course, 200-egg hens and a few that have made records much higher. But these high records are by no means common.

It is said that a high average for a pullet is 150 eggs a year, for a hen 140. But we must remember that hens, like cows, have their own individuality and it is not easy to find a flock of high producers.

The way to increase the production of eggs is to select pullets or hens with high records, mate them with cockerels from good laying strains and hatch from them. Even then, the progress must be slow, for there is apt to be a large per cent that will be poor producers. But this is the only safe way to raise hens that lay a large number of eggs a year.

SELECTION OF BEST LAYERS

Look for Full, Well-Developed Breast and Crop—This Gives Assurance of Strength.

The selection of the best-laying hens may be made in several ways. If you know that the mother hens were good egg producers and the pullets have the same formation of the body it may be reasonable to expect that the pullets will also be fine egg producers. There is, however, one almost certain sign that may be used in selecting laying hens. Look for a full, well-developed breast and crop, showing a large pocket in which to carry the food supply. This gives assurance of strength and vigor, and the ability to consume a sufficient amount of food to sustain the body and produce the eggs.

She must have the ability to consume a large amount of food and the body and abdominal proportions to handle and transfer it into the general make-up of the body and the egg production.

FATTEN POULTRY IN CRATES

Special Ration of Cornmeal, Middlings, Bran and Buttermilk Adds Weight and Flavor.

To fatten poultry put them into a crate, keep them for a day without food, then give them a special ration of seven parts cornmeal, three parts middlings and one part bran, with buttermilk enough to make a mixture about as thin as pancake batter.

During the 10 or 14 days they are fed this ration they gain from 15 to 25 per cent in weight and much more than that in flavor.

His Selfish State.

"I live in a state where there are absolutely no divorces."

"Indeed! What state is that?"

"The state of single blessedness."—Boston Transcript.

Question of Appetite.

Probably no difference of opinion of a comparatively minor subject is more striking than that which exists between a man and his doctor on what constitutes overeating.

GERMANY PLAYING HER LAST CARD

"Germany is playing her last and strongest card remaining to her. She is staking all on that card. She has a large number of U-boats available and that England will soon feel this campaign as perhaps nothing else before may safely be hazarded. Successful or unsuccessful, Germany's new campaign brings peace nearer. It is the super-crisis of the war and where the war will reach its highest curve."—Karl H. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 1.—Long before the opening of the stock exchange today the shock in financal and diplomatic circles caused by the new German under-sea program, had caused intense uneasiness in the Wall Street district. The board room door was crowded for some time before the beginning of business with selling orders coming in to brokers offices in an absolute flood. Those who were forced to buy put in orders far below the market and when the gong sounded there was a general break in prices, with losses throughout the list generally extending from five to twenty points. First sales of Steel Common were fixed at 35,000 shares at 105 to 100, with a further drop to 99 in the next few minutes. Marine Pfd declined 17⅝ points to 65, Pittsburgh Coal 11½ points to 35, Anaconda 12½ to 70, Central Leather 13½ to 70 and General Motor 10¾ to 100. Bethlehem Steel opened 26 off at 375. In the rail group, Union Pacific fell 7¼ to 134¾. Utah Copper, which was the strongest feature yesterday when it closed at 111¼, sold down to 99. The rallies, after these low prices were established, were almost as violent as the decline had been. Many issues made upturns of five to seven points with jumps of two to three points between sales. Utah Copper rallied from 99 to 107, Steel Common to 104 and Anaconda four points to 74½. General Motor rose to 107, Marine Pfd. to 70½ and Marine Common from 19⅜ to 22. Studebaker dropped 9 points to 95, from which it rallied to 102. Erie sold off 3½ to 27 and rallied to 28. American Smelting, after falling ten points to 96, rallied to 99½. At the end of the first half hour the tone became steadier with the leading stocks finding a market at better than the low prices at the opening.

There was an absence of excited trading in the late forenoon. Prices generally reacted one to two points from the highest reached on the rally, with Steel Common selling around 102 and Utah Copper around 103. Marine Preferred reacted to 69 and similar recessions after rallies were recorded in nearly all the other important issues. Bethlehem Steel declined to 365½. Money loaning at 2 per cent.

The final tone was irregular. Many leading issues showed a rallying tendency in the late trading.

YOUNG MR. FEB. IS GREETED BY RAIN

While Thunder and Lightning Storm Play a Farewell to Old Mr. January. Who Departed From Kingston at Stroke of Twelve.

To the accompaniment of a thunder and lightning storm old Mr. January packed his grip—but left a few cases behind—and departed from Kingston at the stroke of twelve last night, and will not return until 1918. While heaven's orchestra played a smashing farewell to Mr. January, young Mr. February came in accompanied by the gentle tap, tap, tap of falling rain and this morning when residents awoke they found the sidewalks and roads flooded, and walking extremely risky on account of the ice which had been uncovered by the melting snow.

Old Man January who has left our busy midst has left a record behind him. During the month but twenty-one arrests were made by the police, the lowest number in five years. But while few felt the grip of the law hundreds of local residents felt the grip of Mr. LaGrippe, and the disease raged throughout all sections of the city, and there are still a number of cases left about town. The past month was also remarkable for the fact that there was but little, if any, zero weather. What this month will bring forth time alone will tell.

called and said she had heard a gun fired and had seen Mrs. Weber come down toward her and saw something which she could not hear. Then after standing and tearing her hair and waving her hands for a minute she went back toward her house.

Gordon Fitzgerald, 12 years old, testified to about the same facts as his mother.

Weber Takes the Stand.

When Weber took the stand in his own behalf he stated that in August last he was employed by Edward Coffey, the plumber. He had never had any trouble with the Elmendorfs until the day of the occurrence but he had been told of trouble with the people who lived at the Elmendorf house.

Mrs. Weber Complained of Trouble.

On a number of occasions his wife had told him of having trouble with the family but as he was at work he never saw any of the happenings.

At one time the Elmendorfs had a dog which they tied to a wire and which they also tied to one of his outbuildings and this dog had at times come into his yard through a hole in the fence.

Weber Met With Accident.

For a time Mr. Weber worked for the Kingston city water works and during his work for the city he was in a cavein on Hurley avenue and his hips were injured and at the present time he still suffers from the injuries. At that time he was laid up for several weeks at home.

Weber Had First Trouble.

The happenings which led up to the trouble on August 9, when the shooting took place, were told in detail by Mr Weber upon his direct examination.

"I went to work on August 8, but was not feeling well and I laid off about 9 or 10 o'clock and went home."

"What did you do after that?" said Mr. Brooks.

"I went bullfrogging with the children but we did not get any that day."

After they came home Weber told of sending the little girl for butter and of her complaint that the Elmendorf and Halstead children were bothering her. When she went down the road the second time he watched and when she came back he went out to meet her.

"When I got down to the Elmendorf house I became tangled up in the fish lines. I reached down and picked them up. They were tied to wagon wheels on the side of the street and the other end was upon the Elmendorf stoop and Mrs. Elmendorf was standing on the end of the line, and when I pulled on the line she nearly tripped up."

Children Threw Dirt at Weber.

Mr. Weber said the children had also thrown dirt at him when he passed.

At this time Weber said that when he became tangled up in the fish hooks and lines his pants were torn and his leg injured.

"Have you still marks on your leg?" said Mr. Brooks.

"I have, said Weber.

"Show them to the jury."

Weber rolled up his trousers and showed the marks still on his leg where he was torn by the hooks on August 8.

Continuing his story Weber said he had gone to the city hall in the evening and asked for a warrant but Sergeant Murray said he could not issue a warrant and that if he came back in the morning and told his troubles to the recorder he could issue a warrant.

The next morning he went before the recorder and asked for a warrant for the Elmendorf boy, Teddy Halstead and Mrs. Elmendorf.

"He did not pay any attention to me and finally said he was tired of mussing with me."

"I said this did not help me any any but he would not give me any warrant and I said, 'Does this mean that I have got to take my own part' and he said: 'You can suit yourself.'"

Weber said he had heard firearms discharged by the Elmendorfs at different times and also saw George Elmendorf with a rifle.

"Did you have a few drinks on August 8?" said Brooks.

"I did. After leaving the hall I stopped at Luke Costello's on Broadway and had one beer. I walked up and stopped at Joe Bennett's and had another beer and then started home."

Elmendorfs Taunted Him.

"While passing the Elmendorf house the people there who were seated on the porch said: 'You went down to the city hall for a warrant but you did not get one, did you?'"

Children Threw Stones.

Weber Complained to Charley.

On August 8, when he was on his way to the city hall in the evening he met Charley Elmendorf on the corner of Washington avenue and North Front street and told him his family was raising "ructions" and asked Charley to do something about it.

"I told him of the fish line and showed him the line and he said he would put me somewhere where the lines would not bother me."

Told Weber to See Lawyer.

The following day Weber told his wife that he could not get a warrant and she advised him to come up and see Mr Brinnier and get legal advice and see if they could not get a warrant. He also said he had been home that day, August 9, for dinner but his wife testified that he did not come home that day until about 4 o'clock.

He went that afternoon to Joe Avery's and borrowed the shells for the gun and stopped at Bennett's, Peck and Hall's and had a few more drinks and then he went home.

Weber Again Attacked.

"As I passed the Elmendorf house they were on deck waiting for me and they jeered and hissed and followed it up with stones."

Weber did not say anything at the time but went home and Mrs. Weber began to get supper.

Weber Took the Gun Along.

"While my wife was in the cellar I suggested to myself that I would go and tell them (the Elmendorfs) to leave me alone. I took the gun along."

Saw Elmendorf With Stone.

"Before I got there I saw Elmendorf Lola coming out and Elmendorf had a stone. He met me at the corner and we had a wrangle and he threw the stone at me. I brought the gun down on his head."

The witness then described the fight which followed. He said they fell down, Elmendorf on top, but Weber rolled him off and then they got on their feet again and fought over to the other side of the road and he again hit Elmendorf who fell. He was not sure if Elmendorf's head hit the stone curb when he fell or not. Then Mrs Herrick came out and hit him with a stone and he chased her.

Found Charley Unconscious.

"I then went back and picked up Elmendorf and sat him up but he fell over and I saw he was unconscious and let him down again."

He then started down the walk path and did wave his hands and shout but he was waving good bye to his wife and saying good bye to the folks. He thought he may have cursed at the Buntens who were on their porch. He then started down toward the court house to give himself up when he met Officer Kuehn.

Did Weber Assault Other People?

Weber told District Attorney upon cross examination that he lived in Eddyville and he did not know if his name was Weber or Weiber as his folks had died when he was young and he had used both names since.

At one time he worked on the Washington avenue sewer he said and then Mr. Traver attempted to show several assaults which it is alleged Weber had committed.

Weber said he had not assaulted an Italian in 1911 with an axe handle on North Front street, nor an Italian in the Coykendall quarry, but admitted he had struck a man named William Ellsworth after he had struck Weber. An attempt to show some illegal business in Eddyville some time ago was not allowed by the court.

Weber Gets Confused.

Weber then said he had had dinner at home on August 9, but his wife said he did not. He also said Judge Lang had not told him the matter was so trivial to issue a warrant for and said if Judge Lang had so said it was untrue.

He said he had borrowed the gun 3 or 4 weeks before to go frog hunting with.

"Why did you borrow shells if you had lots at home?" said Mr. Traver.

"To have more," was the answer.

He said he had asked for eight shells but Avery could only spare 4.

When asked if he had told Sam Hall about the fish line episode he was unable to tell and repeated questions answered on direct examination he was unable to answer on cross examination. He said he had forgotten where he stopped or who he saw on the morning of the 9th and could not remember where he stopped for drinks.

"How many times did you strike Elmendorf?"

"I struck him once with the gun when it went off."

When he knocked Elmendorf down he had struck him with his fist in the face, and after he knocked him down he said he did not strike him again.

"Did not your wife say you struck him after he was down?" said Mr. Traver.

"Maybe I did strike him," admitted Weber.

He said if Elmendorf had 10 cuts or bruises on his head he did not know how he got them and he did not think he had sworn at the Buntens or said he would finish them if he had another charge. He did not say he had "finished the damn niggers."

Did Not Hit Him With Stone.

He said he had not jounced Elmendorf's head up and down on the stone nor had he hit him with a stone.

At this time he recalled that when he hit Elmendorf over the head with the gun they did not fall down but that Elmendorf hit him then.

Came to Stop the Trouble.

"What were you coming down the road with the gun for?"

"To tell them to stop bothering me."

"You didn't have to carry a gun to tell them that, did you?"

"To my suggestion it would be so, was the answer of the witness.

Weber could not remember hitting Elmendorf on the back of the head and he did not remember telling Mrs. Coffey that he had finished the Elmendorfs and was going to jail for it.

After going a short distance Weber met Officer Kuehn and was stopped and asked where he was going to which he replied that he was going to the court house to give himself up.

"Did you tell Officer Kuehn that you have got the goods on me?" asked Mr Traver.

"No, I said, I have got the goods with me,' meaning that I had the gun with me."

Pessmore Wants More Noise.

At this point Juror No. One asked for the witness to speak louder.

"Mr. District Attorney we can't hear him talk through his hand, can't the witness talk louder, we want to hear him," said Juror Pessmore.

Weber, who has just had several teeth extracted, talked in so low a tone that at times Judge Jenkins could not hear him and the stenographer was compelled to ask him to repeat answers. Repeated warnings to talk louder only gave temporary relief and much of the testimony was not heard by the counsel for the defence. Weber leaned upon one arm of the chair with his hand to his mouth and it was of this that Mr Pessmore complained.

Could Not Remember Distinctly.

Upon re-direct examination Weber said he did not have a distinct recollection of just what did happen at the time of the shooting and assault.

Komeskie Testifies.

Virgil Komeskie who lives across from Elmendorf's house said he had sold the property to the Elmendorf's and had seen Weber on August 8 pick up the fish lines and take them home. He did not see any of the trouble on the ninth because he was working. He sometimes goes to work at 4 or 5 o'clock and works until late in the afternoon, sometimes until 6, 7 or even 8 o'clock.

Court then adjourned until this morning at 10 o'clock.
